When war ended, the countries that won, excepting the United States, began gathering in spoils. At Versailles they divided, giving little or nothing to the little fellows—everything to the big ones. "That's fair enough," as Wallingford would say.

In the Pacific Ocean they gave everything north of the equator to Japan, and everything south of the equator to England, including the enormously rich island of Nauru, that belonged to Germany before the war.

This country said at the last election, and by seven millions plurality, that it wanted nothing to do with the Versailles treaty. Yesterday the United States signed a treaty with Japan, France and England recognizing and guaranteeing to protect the situation in the Pacific. Quite a change since election day, 1920.

The next conference, gentle American easy marks, will be a financial and economic conference. The biggest men are coming for that if they can manage it, including Lloyd George. At that council the question of debts will be settled. We have agreed now to accept, indorse and maintain the situation in the Pacific. That settles THAT, satisfactorily, with Uncle Sam backing up the Versailles treaty of spoliation.

If now we will kindly agree to "fund" our debt of ten thousand millions, taking a dollar down and a dollar a year or something of that kind, all will be well.

The golden rule and the other "teachings of Christ" are to manage the American Cast Iron Pipe Company of Atlanta. All directors are church members, and the golden rule will run the business. It is difficult for an ordinary citizen to understand just how the Founder of Christianity would manage a cast iron pipe business. Hard to imagine Him accepting any profit or thinking of anything except the children of the workers and the workers themselves.

The federated churches of Pittsburgh have decided that hard-working evangelists like Billy Sunday and Gipsy Smith are not desirable. They are "to high priced, too much commercialized, obsolete, false in stimulation and ineffective."

The regular clergy will never again invite revivalists to come and stir up sluggish souls. Billy Sunday's answer to that will be interesting.

However, there will be revivals all the same, and prosperous men will continue to build large halls for the work of salvation. If you can get workers worrying about their souls they are apt to pay less attention to the payroll and think less of going out on strike. If you can persuade a man that he is going to boil forever, you kill his interest in an eight-hour day.

The Angel Gabriel will write a cheerful paragraph in his book concerning Lord Morley's appearance in the House of Lords to speak once more in favor of Ireland.

With Gladstone and the other old fighters, he worked for justice to Ireland, abused and despised by the Tories. Now, eighty-three years old, feeble in health, Lord the last of the great men of Gladstone's days, he comes from his retirement, a real nobleman, noble in heart and mind, to speak for justice.

There has been no finer sight in the House of Lords since Lord Chatham, old, almost dying, rose to denounce England's brutality and folly in her treatment of the American colonies.

One thing it is to be hoped our friends from Europe will not obtain from the United States, and that is a promise to give up the use of the submarine.

With a sufficient fleet of submarines and a big enough flock of flying machines this country can keep safe. Without submarines our cities are constantly threatened. The submarine, as it happens, might be used against the shipping of England all over the world. That we regret. This country, however, is not going to attack anybody's shipping, and it ought not to give up any weapon that will prevent attacking this country.

The London correspondent of the New York Post, owned in the office of Morgan & Company and therefore well informed on financial matters, says that the English pound sterling is rising because the business of the United States is falling off in foreign countries. The less we sell the less they need the American dollar to pay, and the better chance for other money to rise.

PREMIER ASKS PARLIAMENT TO RATIFY IRISH PACT

BRITISH CHEER TREATY

Lloyd George Declares Agreement Has Been Universally Acclaimed and Welcomed

By International News Service.

London, Dec. 14.—"The Irish peace treaty was universally welcomed and acclaimed," said Premier Lloyd George this afternoon in an appeal to the House of Commons to ratify the pact. "It was given wider publicity than any other treaty with the exception of the treaty of Versailles."

Attacks against the peace agreement on the ground it humiliated the British Empire, were discounted by the Premier when he declared:

"The settlement was received by our dominions and allies alike with hope and with joy."

Lloyd George was frequently interrupted by bursts of cheering and shouts of "Here, here."

The Premier paid tribute to the courage of the Sinn Fein delegates who signed the treaty, saying:

"They took great risks, as is shown by what is raging in Ireland at this hour. All honor to them. Let us not say a word that will make their task any more difficult."

As the Premier spoke of the Irish envoys, the whole house joined in a roar of applause.

The Premier was given a tremendous ovation when he arose to speak. Previously several members of Commons had made speeches lauding the

Dr. Lorenz Tells Peters He Will Not Come to Boston

Dr. Adolf Lorenz, the Austrian surgeon who has aided scores of New York cripples, will not come to Boston. This was made known in a letter to Mayor Peters. Dr. Lorenz said:

"I very much regret that poor health and the great number of cases in New York will not permit me to visit any of the States during my stay in this country. Please be assured, however, that your invitation is much appreciated by me."

FOUR RISK LIVES TO SAVE MEDFORD BOY

Four men risked their lives in the Mystic River today to save the life of nine-year-old Ernest Brent, Park and Salem streets, Medford, who had been thrown into the water when a coal cart on which he was sitting backed off the edge of Cowan a Wharf. The men were William Bromfield, driver of the cart, which belonged to Albert Cowan; William Sheehan, No. 5 Cherry street, Medford; Charles Babcock, No. 109 Riverside avenue, Medford, and James Ingraham of the same address.

Brent was hauled out to the wharf and sent home in an auto, none the worse for his experience. The horse attached to the cart was drowned.

DORCHESTER MAN HELD IN PITTSFIELD THEFT

Pittsfield, Dec. 14.—Herbert W. J. Fitzpatrick, twenty-seven years of age, of Dorchester, brought here from Springfield to answer to a charge of stealing an automobile, was today held in $2,000 bonds for trial. On December 24 Fitzpatrick, according to the police, confessed to stealing four cars, one of which he said was at the suggestion of the owner, who was desirous of collecting the insurance.

SOMERVILLE MAN DIES ON WAY TO HOSPITAL

BLACKMAIL PLOT IS PROBED

Lawyer Is Accused in $17,500 Extortion Before Suffolk Grand Jury

Evidence concerning an alleged blackmail plot by a prominent lawyer against a well known Boston business man is understood to have been presented to the Suffolk County Grand Jury by Assistant District Attorney Hurwitz today.

The business man is declared to have been found in company with a married woman in her apartment in Allston. It is alleged that the lawyer and a number of other men broke into the room early one morning.

It was reported that the lawyer had ascertained the amount of the business man's income for that year and that a demand of $100,000 was made on him in exchange for silence.

VICTIM PAYS $17,500.

It is charged that this amount was later reduced to $17,500, which was paid. A warrant was secured against the business man, but it was never served.

Attorney-General Allen, it is understood, is in possession of affidavits signed by a number of women and girls who participated in blackmail plots.

They are believed to have told all they know of these cases, including names of men whom they accused of being leaders in the plots.

Evidence relating to the alleged compounding of a felony by a police official is also understood to have been presented to the Grand Jury. It is said to relate to the story of a man who was approached by his landlady, who asked for a loan of $200.

TELLS OF $2,000 THEFT.

The man gave her this money, which he took from life savings of $2,000 he had hidden in his room. Later he found the $2,400 balance was missing. He reported to police officials, saying the woman, her husband and son denied knowledge of the money.

Policemen, it is asserted, found a pane of glass had been removed from a window in the man's room and gave it as their opinion that a robber had entered by that means. A few days later, the man said, he was asked to visit a certain police official, who told him he could get his money back or have the guilty person sent away for two years.

The man says that he asked for the money, but was only given $1,700. He then hired private detectives.

The Grand Jury deliberated earlier in the week, it is reported on evidence connected with alleged violation of the "Blue Sky" financial laws.

MORRILL SUES FOR DIVORCE

Wealthy Brookline Ink Manufacturer Accuses Wife of Misconduct With 2 Men

The final chapter in the matrimonial drama of Leon G. Morrill, wealthy Brookline ink manufacturer, and his wife Florence R. Morrill, is scheduled to take place in Superior Court at Dedham.

This became known today when it was learned Morrill had filed suit for divorce on October 24, charging his wife with misconduct with two Brookline men of social and business prominence.

Morrill charges his wife with misconduct at their former home, No. 253 St. Paul street, Brookline, on or about July 14, 1918. He also charges her with misconduct on August 4 at No. 21 Warwick road, Brookline.

It is at this address that Mrs. Morrill is now living with her two children and her mother, Mrs. D. W. Russell.

Morrill in his suit asks for the custody of the two children, Russell G., thirteen years old, and Marguerite, nine.

The first intimation that all was not well in the Morrill household came nearly two years ago, when Mrs. Morrill started separate support proceedings against her husband in the Probate Court at Dedham.

The court ordered Morrill to pay his wife alimony of $200 cash and $200 a month. Morrill appealed to the Superior Court and the matter dragged on.

The filing of the divorce suit by Morrill has come as an unexpected blow to Mrs. Morrill, and but few of her immediate friends had the slightest intimation that any such thing was in the air.

The Morrills were married in 1904 at the bride's home, No. 60 Park street, Brookline. The wedding was a brilliant affair, and a notable reception followed the ceremony.

Morrill is a graduate of Technology, where he made a name for himself as a track man. He is connected with the firm of George H. Morrill Company, No. 185 Pearl street, and is the fourth generation of his family in the ink business.

Attorneys for both Mrs. Morrill and her husband refused to comment on the case. Morrill declared that he had nothing to say for publication.

ST. LOUIS BROWNS GET PITCHER DANFORTH

New York, Dec. 14.—The St. Louis Browns and the Columbus American Association baseball teams today concluded one of the biggest deals of the Winter when Clarence Rowland agreed to send Pitcher Dave Danforth of the Columbus team to the Browns for four pitchers, a second baseman and three other players. There was no cash consideration. Every major league in the two circuits had been bidding for Danforth, a former White Sox pitcher.

FIGHT OVER RETURNS BEGINS AT ONCE

Petitions Calling for Another Tabulation of Ballots Are Being Circulated

Definite announcement was made today that John R. Murphy will ask for a recount of the votes for Mayor cast in yesterday's election.

The returns gave the election to James M. Curley by 2,698 votes.

"A recount will be demanded in order to protect the interests of the men and women who supported Mr. Murphy," Attorney Charles H. Morris, his campaign manager, said this afternoon.

As soon as the returns were announced last night Mr. Morris took out a set of recount papers. These petitions were circulated in each Ressex ward today by Democratic and Republican friends of Mr. Murphy.

GUARDING BALLOTS.

Meanwhile, acting in the interests of James M. Curley, William B. Watts, former head of the Bureau of Criminal Investigation and now head of a private detective agency, and two of his operatives are guarding the vaults in the City Hall Annex, where the ballots cast yesterday are locked up.

This guard will be maintained, Watts said, until all the recounts that may be asked for have been completed.

Hardly had the detectives taken their seats in two chairs facing the vault when Patrolman Joseph Whitehead, from the City Hall avenue station, arrived and took another chair in the rear of the detectives.

LOYALTY OF WOMEN TO CURLEY BIG FACTOR IN ELECTION

Further than that the uniformed man would be relieved in three-hour shifts until the ballots are removed in the event of a recount, the police were mute about this latest move.

No one would say at whose instance this triple guard had been set.

The election laws require that fifty signatures of registered voters be obtained in each of the twenty-six Boston wards, in order to secure a recount. Friends of Mr. Murphy expect to promptly secure the required number of signatures. The petition must be filed with the election commissioners not later than next Friday.

There was a report in political circles today that in one of the precincts in Ward 21 a block of fifty Murphy votes had been credited by mistake to Curley.

MURPHY GAINED WEIGHT.

Mr. Murphy gained four pounds in weight during the strenuous campaign he said when he dropped into the headquarters from which the fight was made today.

He appeared to be in good spirits and showed no ill effects whatever from his hard work of the past several weeks.

The ballot vault is in the office of the Election Commissioners. This is in the basement of the City Hall Annex, under the main corridor. One approach is by a narrow, winding stairway. The other stairway is near a shaft through which it would be possible for a man to drop to the Election Board office.

It is at these strategic points that Watts and his men have taken up their watch. They closely scrutinize all the hundreds of persons who pass the vicinity daily.

"I am under orders from Mayor-elect Curley," said Watts today, "to see that no one except those duly accredited approach the vault containing the ballots. I am going to stay until all the recounts asked for have been completed."

THE DUTY OF WATTS.

The vault has a double lock, the parts being known as "Republican" and "Democratic." It can only be opened when a Democratic member of the Election Commission is present with a key to the Democratic lock and a Republican member accompanies him with a Republican key.

Watts says he is there to see that two Democrats or two Republicans do not approach the vault together. Also he will report whatever else of political importance he may observe.

George E. Ferreira, who ran fourth in the race for City Council, and who, according to the returns missed displacing John A. Donoghue for third place by about 940 votes, today filed a petition for a recount of his vote.

In spite of the tremendous vote polled at yesterday's election, a vote in excess of 160,000, it was one of the closest mayoralty contests in the city's history.

Here is the Mayoralty vote, as made up by Boston American tabulators:

James M. Curley	74,368
John R. Murphy	71,562
Charles S. O'Connor	10,818
Charles S. Baxter	4,266

The vote was the largest ever cast in an election in this city. It totalled 160,906.

It was a great victory, fitting climax to one of the hardest, bitterest campaigns ever waged in this or any other city.

It was so celebrated last night by thousands of Curley admirers in one of the wildest demonstrations that ever greeted a triumphant candidate.

A large factor in Curley's victory, unquestionably, was the loyalty of the Democratic women of the city of Boston to his cause.

That they must have voted for him almost en masse admits of little argument.

Another factor was the presence in the field of Charles S. Baxter, Republican, who was continually denounced by Republicans as an "auxiliary candidate of Curley's."

Baxter got more votes than the difference between Murphy's vote and Curley's votes. To that extent he spoiled the victory between victory and defeat for the candidate with the G. G. A. indorsement.

Still another factor was the amazing strength shown by Curley in Charlestown, East Boston, South Boston and Roxbury. To make this victory complete, the winning candidate swept Charlestown and took a considerable lead away from his opponent in every precinct.

Curley ran strong in South Boston, the adherents of Charles S. O'Connor failing either to get enough votes to put their man really in the race or to embarrass the ex-Mayor.

Even in Ward 8, Lomasney's stamping ground, Curley was not without his friends. He carried Precincts 1, 2 and 7.

The Curley people had several premature jubilations. But when all but two or three precincts were in, when the City Hall election commissioners conceded the victory, they poured the thousands and tens of thousands of votes that had made James Michael Curley's dream of a return to power come true.

They came from Roxbury and the South End; from East Boston and Charlestown; from South Boston and Hyde Park.

The flare of their torches gave the impression of a great, disorganized army advancing. Their cheers could be heard for miles.

And then—James Michael Curley, who dreamed a dream and saw it realized, appeared among his people.

He was a conqueror, and was greeted with the ovation that a conqueror commands.

And Curley, who for weeks had turned a grim, unsmiling face upon his enemies, realized that he was at the end of his fight, and among those who believed him wife, and he relaxed, as a conqueror can when the field is won.

The Curley hosts poured by high ways and byways into the narrow lanes of streets about City Hall.

One detachment merged with another until at last all the humanity that could be crowded into those narrow streets was there, and the marchers stopped, for they could go no further.

Then in and out around the standstill crowd flying wedge of Curleyism did a snake dance, their torches lifted high.

The organized cheering became a pandemonium. The streets became nothing but light and sound.

Some of the more ardent spirits dragged a small grandstand sometimes used in reviewing small parades into the street in front of City Hall. Curley was lifted high on the shoulders of his worshippers. He was carried to the grandstand.

Speeches were made, but nobody heard them. Announcements were made, but nobody cared.

CARRIED ON SHOULDERS.

The crowd was an army that had triumphed, and it was taking part of the fruits of victory.

"Tomorrow"—that was the attitude. Tomorrow we can hear what Curley means to do and how he made us fight for our loyalty, but tonight we celebrate."

Curley was carried on the shoulders of men who all but fought for the privilege. He was taken to newspaper row.

There again, he spoke, and in that narrow canyon the thousands milled and cheered and sang.

Those close to him heard some of his address, which he made with every indication that he, like his followers, was swayed by intense emotion.

Later the Curley army started a roundabout route to Faneuil Hall, and all the way the Curley crusaders cheered as they passed persons or places related with Curley's triumph, and "booed" and did the dead march for the confusion of Curley's opponents.

The triumph of James Michael Curley, in the opinion of many, and particularly friendly to him, it is true, is that it was largely the result of the "auxiliary candidacy" of Charles S. Baxter.

Baxter, Republican, it will be noted got enough and more than enough votes to have elected John R. Murphy had the votes gone to that candidate. The general feeling was that they would have.

SINN FEINERS IN CLASH AT DUBLIN

Called Traitor, Collins Demands That Sessions Be Open to the Public

Premier for his success in settling the Irish problem.

The extraordinary session of Parliament had been opened earlier in the day with a speech by King George praising the Irish peace agreement.

"I hope we have found a solution, but I do not like to be too sanguine," said the Premier.

Then he went into details as to how the treaty will give Ireland a share in the responsibilities of the Empire.

Sinn Fein Chiefs Clash At Peace Treaty Session

By International News Service.

Dublin, Dec. 14—Despite an impassioned protest from Michael Collins, commander-in-chief of the Irish Republican army, the Sinn Fein Parliament (Dail Eireann) today went into secret session for discussion of the Irish peace treaty.

Action on the treaty was deferred one day.

The motion for a secret session was made by Dr. White. De Valera sprang from his seat and seconded it.

Collins then got the floor and made a fiery speech.

"Some have called me a traitor," shouted the Republican commander. "I want to clear myself publicly. I demand an open session."

Collins' face was flushed with anger and his eyes flashed.

"I have nothing to conceal," he continued. "I signed the agreement upon the understanding that all were to recommend its acceptance."

After Collins sat down several others spoke on the motion before final decision was taken.

It was reported that all of the members of Dail Eireann who are officers in the Irish Republican army were in favor of ratification of the treaty, with one exception. The recalcitrant was from Tipperary.

De Valera did not take his accustomed seat beside Griffith and Collins when he entered. Instead, he crossed to the opposite side of the room and took a seat among his supporters.

Before the session was called to order, De Valera was asked for a statement on his differences with the Irish peace delegates. "At two meetings of Dail Eireann I have clarified my point of view," said the Sinn Fein leader.

"The Assembly sent the delegates to London expecting that the assembly would have an opportunity to criticize and review the results of the conference. Certain alterations were made in the form of the treaty without Cabinet sanction."

There was a hot cross fire of verbal exchanges between De Valera and Collins, which resulted in the speaker ruling the former out of order.

De Valera brought up the legality of the Irish delegates' action at London. He declared the Sinn Fein plenipotentiaries were not empowered to sign the pact until the Cabinet had given its assent.

Collins charged De Valera had misrepresented the situation. Then he read a document which indicated that the delegates had the fullest power to sign regardless of the Sinn Fein Cabinet.

Collins threatened to carry the treaty direct to the Irish people in a plebiscite if the Dail Eireann rejected it.

"Not Dail Eireann, but the Irish people are our masters and they have a right to know the facts," declared the army chief.

King Asks Parliament to Make Erin "Free Partner"

London, Dec. 14 (By the Associated Press)—The special session of Parliament called to consider the Irish peace settlement was opened today by King George.

The King said in his speech:

"I have summoned you to meet at an unusual time in order that the articles of agreement which have been signed by my ministers and the Irish delegations may be laid before you for your approval. No other business will be brought before you at the present session.

"It was with heartfelt joy that I learned of the agreement, reached after negotiations protracted many months, and affecting not only the welfare of Ireland but of the British and Irish races throughout the world.

"It is my earnest hope that by the articles of agreement now submitted to you the strife of centuries may be ended and that Ireland, as a free partner in the commonwealth of nations forming the British Empire, will secure fulfillment of her national ideals."

Ulster Not to Join Irish Free State

London, Dec. 13 (By the Associated Press)—Ulster's intention to stand aloof from the Irish Free State is expressed in a letter sent to Prime Minister Lloyd George today from Sir James Craig, the Ulster Premier, according to a Belfast despatch to the Evening Standard.

The letter, says the despatch, was handed to the Ulster Cabinet last night as a reply to Lloyd George's letter of December 5, which contained the terms of the Anglo-Irish agreement.

Belfast reports, according to the Standard's information, protests against what he terms "Great Britain's desertion from the Act of 1920, which Ulster accepted in good faith.

Constabulary Sergeant Killed in South Ireland

Dublin, Dec. 14—A breach of the Irish armistice was reported today, just after Dail Eireann went into session. A sergeant of the Royal Irish Constabulary was fired on and killed at Ballyhaunis.

Several lorries filled with police were rushed to the scene from Listowel.

MISS CURTIS IS BOSTON'S BEST VOTE-GETTER

Runs Far Ahead of Curley in Her Fourth Lively Contest for Office

Miss Frances G. Curtis of Beacon Hill was the best vote getter in the city election.

Figures revised today show that she polled more than 4,700 votes more than James M. Curley received. The leader of the city council candidates was distanced by more than 21,500 and Miss Curtis ran only 10,800 behind the total vote for all candidates for mayor in the city election four years ago. In any even fight for re-election to the school committee Miss Curtis ran 7,000 ahead of O'Hare.

But Miss Curtis has always won, since she first entered politics in 1913, when it was something of a novelty for women to contest for municipal offices.

CAN GET THE VOTES.

Miss Curtis, who saw woman suffrage coming long before it arrived, knows how to out and get the votes. In four lively campaigns she has always won easily. She comes of a family of champions.

The Curtis family is accustomed to honors in one field or another. Two of her sisters have been national women golf champions, Margaret and Harriet. G. S. Curtis, a brother, was a pioneer aeroplane manufacturer. James Curtis, another brother, has been an assistant secretary of the treasury.

Miss Curtis helped to raise eight brothers and sisters and was foster-mother to 4,700 children during thirteen years of service on the State Board of Charities.

When she first ran for the school committee Miss Curtis had some lively contests. Many of the old politics leaders opposed her from the stump. But Miss Curtis climbed right on the rostrum and returned shot for shot. Some of her most pointed shafts were directed at John F. Fitzgerald in previous campaigns.

WAS STUDENT AT TECH.

Miss Curtis was born in Boston in 1867. She received her early education in private schools, took a course in philosophy at Radcliffe and took a course in sanitary engineering at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology at a time when women students were a novelty there.

Miss Curtis has done much social work in Boston and other parts of the State, and has been particularly interested in the management of model tenements. She also is a leading advocate of the extension of the playground system.

OFFICIALS WILL QUIT AS CURLEY TAKES OFFICE

Several Resignations at City Hall When Peters' Term Ends Are Predicted

Speculation over possible changes that will result in the City Hall administration when Mayor-elect James M. Curley takes office includes the prediction of several resignations and in almost unlimited surmising as to the probable personnel of the new Mayor's unofficial "board of advisors."

It is confidently asserted that when Curley takes office he will find on his desk resignations from Corporation Counsel Frank S. Deland, Health Commissioner Dr. William C. Woodward, Institution Commissioner Thomas C. O'Brien and City Collector E. V. B. Parks.

In addition it is thought extremely possible that Edmund Billings of the Transit Commission and Edward J. Kelly, chairman of the Board of Assessors, will resign as soon as Mayor Peters leaves office.

Kelly was nominated a few days ago by Mayor Peters as successor to Alfred Mitchell, as city auditor, but the appointment has not yet received councilmanic confirmation.

Among those who it is expected will be prominent in the new administration, gossip includes Dr. Fred J. Logan, present chairman of the school committee, and Brigadier-General John H. Dunn of the Board of Street Commissioners.

The latter, it is predicted, will be made chairman of that board and will also, it is confidently asserted, run for Congress next Fall in opposition to Congressman James A. Gallivan, who opposed Curley in this election.

E. Mark Sullivan of Brighton, former Assistant U. S. District Attorney, is said to be in line for the position of corporation counsel under the new regime. Others who are mentioned as probable leading lights in the new administration are Congressman Peter F. Tague, former Congressman Joseph F. O'Connell, James A. Watson, president of the City Council; Councilman David J. Brickley and Senator John J. Carey of Dorchester.

All of those men were active in Curley's campaign, and are numbered among his close personal friends.

WOMAN ADMITS SLAYING OF DOCTOR

Mrs. Raizen Debated Whether to Kill Glickstein or Commit Suicide

New York, Dec. 14—The mysterious slayer of Dr. Abraham Glickstein, whose identity has been puzzling New York since Saturday, surrendered to District Attorney Lewis of Kings.

She is Mrs. Lillian Schaffer Raizen of No. 14 Avenue W, Flatbush, wife of Charles Raizen, a wealthy toy manufacturer. She made a full confession.

Mrs. Raizen told an amazing story of her relations with Dr. Glickstein, over a period of eight years, leading up to the shooting. She will plead insanity.

Here is her own story:

By MRS. LILLIAN SCHAFFER RAIZEN.

I shot Dr. Glickstein about half past five last Saturday.

Why I did it is a long story. I have known him ever since I was a little girl of three. We lived in the same house on the lower East Side of Manhattan, on Henry street.

My father, Jacob W. Schaffer of the Schaffer Tinware Company, befriended him. I always went to him to treat me for little ailments. He was twenty years older than I and I trusted him implicitly.

Eight years ago, when I was twenty years old, I had an attack of grippe. I went to him for treatment. He took advantage of me by force. I was too shocked and ashamed to tell my family, and he still continued to be a friend of the house. Later he took advantage of my guilty secret to have further relations with me, lasting over a period of years.

Finally I broke away from him. I went to Atlantic City and got a clerkship in a firm in Manhattan and tried to forget. Charles S. Raizen, a childhood sweetheart, met me and married me. Finally, without telling him of my relations with Dr. Glickstein, whom I seemed to see in a dread nightmare, I consented to marry him.

My coming wedding was to be a big affair at the Hotel Commodore. I was buying my trousseau when one day Dr. Glickstein telephoned me.

This message greatly disturbed me. He asked me to come over. But I couldn't think of anything so horrible as that he was still going to try to degrade me on the eve of my marriage. He called me several times, and I thought from what he said that he wanted to apologize and make some kind of reparation.

So at last I yielded and went to see him. When I got into his private office he made improper remarks to me, and when I went to get out he seized me, and in the struggle again he sought to make me grant his desires by force. I had the strength to resist him.

The terrible scene in his office, the indignities I had suffered for years, the memory of my girlhood shame all crowded into my mind and darkened it on the day of my wedding.

Mr. Raizen and I went to Atlantic City in May, 1921, on our honeymoon. I brooded and brooded over my affair with Dr. Glickstein. It seemed to me I had done a terrible injustice to my boyhood sweetheart by marrying him under the circumstances.

On the second day at Atlantic City I could keep my terrible secret no longer. I had a mental breakdown and I told my husband everything.

FORGAVE AND FORGOT.

He was everything that was fine and noble. He took me into his arms and comforted me. He told me he forgave and would forget it all. He promised to protect me in the future. He told me not to worry.

I had a terrible fear that Dr. Glickstein would pursue me and send a letter to my husband.

My husband took me to a Dr. Tannenbaum, a psycho-analyst specialist of the Freudian School, at Broadway and One Hundred and Fifty-eighth street. Dr. Tannenbaum diagnosed my case as a compulsive neurosis and prescribed a trip to Florida.

I went there to visit an aunt at Daytona. On the way down I continued to brood over the great wrong I had done my husband. I spoke to people on the train, confiding a matter named Ellis, telling them of my trouble.

I got off the train at Jacksonville and there, in company with Mr. Ellis, I bought a revolver and cartridges with the intention of killing myself.

I wrote of my intention to kill myself to Dr. Tannenbaum. He got the letter and mailed it to my husband, who was staying at the Hotel Regent, and he received it on the same Saturday that I returned to New York.

On Friday morning I arrived in New York and went to the Hotel Breslin and engaged a room. Saturday morning I sewed up my scarf to look like a muff and started for Brooklyn. I did not intend to kill Dr. Glickstein, although I had a dreadful fear of him and a belief that he had ruined my life and that of my dear husband.

What happened at the doctor's office I do not remember. I remember running away from there and other people running. When I got to New York I went into a public telephone booth and telephoned my father and told him what had happened.

HID THREE DAYS.

I did not tell him where I was, and he did not know until this morning.

I do not care what happens to me. I am perfectly willing to die. I have made trouble enough for my father and for my husband. I have nothing more to live for. I do not want anybody to have any more worry and trouble on my account.

WORCESTER GIRL CONFESSES TO THEFT OF FURS WORTH $6,500

WEEPS AS MOTHER APPEARS

Pretty eighteen-year-old Josephine Shea of No. 93 Lamartine street, Worcester, confessed burglar, has admitted to the New York authorities the theft of four fur coats, valued at $6,500 and a $600 necklace, from Miss Helen Shipman, an actress.

Josephine, arraigned before Judge Talley in the General Sessions Court, New York city, confessed that she had forced an entrance into the actress' room at the Hotel Thorndyke, New York, and made off with the loot.

Her confession hared a strange tale of willfulness that had broken the heart of the girl's widowed mother, Mrs. Mary Shea.

Though she lacks several months to her nineteenth birthday, Josephine already has a criminal record, and is known to the police of Worcester, New York, Boston and Pittsburgh.

Her arrest a month ago on complaint of Miss Shipman took place in a room in the New York hotel, where the Worcester girl was then living with a man.

At that time the pretty young prisoner said her name was Violet Lorring and that she lived at No. 292 West Forty-ninth street, New York.

It was not until she was confronted by her broken-hearted mother, sent for by the New York police to identify the girl, that Josephine confessed her real name.

Then she told the police a strange story. She had fled from a school in Worcester, to which she had been committed at the request of her mother, and had joined a burlesque company.

With the show she traveled to Pittsburgh, where she met a man, whom the New York police are now seeking. He induced her, she declared in court, to leave the show and go with him to New York city. There they established themselves in the Thorndyke Hotel.

Soon her companion's money began to run low, Josephine said, and he suggested that a most profitable deal could be made in four fur coats he had noticed Miss Shipman, another guest, at the hotel, wearing.

GAVE LOOT TO COMPANION.

The girl admitted in court that she had followed this advice and had taken the coats from the apartment of Miss Shipman, together with the necklace which she found in the room. She says that she turned the loot over to her companion.

Judge Talley sentenced Josephine to the Bedford Reformatory, where she will have to remain until she becomes of age.

Both her mother and the girl broke down and wept bitterly when the sentence was imposed.

Miss Shipman is well-known in Boston. She gained considerable fame when she appeared before the soldiers at Camp Devens in 1917, and suffered the loss of the lace frilled blue silk pajamas, which formed part of her costume in the first act of "Oh, Boy," of which she was the star. The pajamas never were found, though the commanding officer of the camp ordered a thorough search for them.

CHINA READY TO BUY SHANTUNG RAILROAD

Japanese Delegates at Arms Conference Cable Offer to Tokio

Washington, Dec. 14 (By the Associated Press).—The counter proposal of China for the purchase from Japan of the Kiao-Chow Tsi Nanfu Railroad in Shantung province has been cabled to Tokio by the Japanese delegation which has been carrying on direct conversations with the Chinese delegates in an effort to settle the Shantung question.

The Japanese are said to have considered it necessary to receive instructions from home on this matter which is deemed the most important in the negotiations.

China is understood to be ready to furnish bonds as security for the payment, but the Japanese are said to feel that some security further than bonds should be given.

The conversations have offered the unusual spectacle of two Oriental countries holding their entire negotiations in the English language. Instances have arisen in the past between Japan and China as a result of a disagreement between them over the proper interpretation of the Chinese and Japanese texts of a given document or statement.

WIFE DEMANDS $50,000 IN LOVE SUIT

Mrs. Paine Charges Quincy Woman Stole Husband's Affections

Mrs. Bertha B. Paine of Boston has brought suit in Suffolk Court for $50,000 against Eleanor Mallory of Quincy, alleging alienation of affections of her husband, Benjamin H. Paine.

Mrs. Paine charges Mrs. Mallory with having been unduly friendly with her husband on September 8, 1917, and with having caused him to leave her home.

At the time the writ was served Mrs. Paine made affidavit that she believed the Mallory woman was intending to leave the State and thus avoid any judgment which might be made against her.

Mrs. Mallory was arrested and brought before Judge Avery in Quincy Police Court. She satisfied the court, however, that she had no intention of leaving Massachusetts and was discharged on that issue.

CHELSEA SAFE IS DYNAMITED AND ROBBED

Shattered Receptacle Found by Police in Field at Saugus

A small safe, stolen from a Chelsea pawnshop by a gang of burglars in an auto, was discovered, blown open by dynamite, in a field in Saugus today.

Watches and rings valued at $1,000 had been taken from the safe.

He called headquarters and Sergeant Bartley and a squad of men were sent to the scene. They found the safe missing and two 18-inch iron bars on the floor of the shop.

The police followed automobile tracks in the snow from the store towards East Boston, but lost them near the car barns in that district.

Berkman, proprietor of the pawnshop, was notified. He described the safe as about three feet square and three feet high. It had contained, he said about $1,000 worth of watches and rings and valuable papers.

Police departments of surrounding cities and towns were notified, but it was impossible to say how many men were in the burglar gang.

About eight hours later the Saugus police telephoned that the safe had been found in their town. Daniel McVicar of Saugus was walking to work when he saw marks in the snow near the Church of the Blessed Sacrament, indicating that some heavy object had been dragged along the ground.

He followed the trail of broken bushes and footprints in the snow to a field back of the church. There he found the safe, with the door blown off.

Battered watches and burned and tattered business papers littered the ground. McVicar reported the find to Police Chief Landafield of Saugus, who had the wrecked safe taken to the police station.

GIRL, SEIZED, HIT ASSAILANT IN FACE

In Court, Waltham Young Woman Says She Was Injured and Lost Purse

Charged with assault and with robbing Miss Louise M. Howe, an attractive young woman, on a lonely street at midnight, Walker F. Ross was held for the Grand Jury in $5,000 in the Waltham Court today.

The parents of Ross, who is twenty-three and married, furnished bail. His counsel offered no defense.

Miss Howe told her story in court today and several other witnesses were heard.

"I took a car in Central square, Waltham," said Miss Howe, "about 11:40 last Saturday. I left the car at Main and Gilbert streets, near my home. There were no street lights near, but the moon was shining plainly.

"Boss, who had been a passenger on the same car, followed me. As we approached a vacant lot he spoke to me several times. I paid no attention to him, but I was not frightened. He kept on speaking to me. Then suddenly he seized me.

"I struck him in the face. When I screamed he placed his hand roughly over my mouth. I was hurled to the ground and my wrist and shoulder injured and my hat smashed.

"A small mesh silver coin purse which was attached to a silver chain and to a ring about one of my fingers was torn off in the struggle. It has not been recovered. It was worth $12 and there was a small amount of money in it."

Mrs. George Morin, who lives near the scene, said she heard Miss Howe's screams and ran out with a revolver. When she arrived Miss Howe was alone.

Joseph Tracey, son of Police Inspector Tracey of Waltham, and George Jones, a conductor, identified Ross as being on the car. They said he left it a few moments after Miss Howe.

FIGURES CURLEY WON ELECTION BY 2,961

James M. Curley won yesterday's mayoralty election by 2,961 votes over John R. Murphy, his nearest rival, according to the compilation made by Michael J. O'Day, assistant election commissioner, today. O'Day is regarded as among the most expert in the city at this sort of work, and he has checked up the figures with great care, basing them upon the last official returns from all the precincts.

WATERTOWN MAN IS ACQUITTED BY JURY

Alfonso Lella of Watertown, charged with robbing Thomas Katcherkes, a Peabody barber, of $400 after the latter had been lured to a lonely spot by four men and two women in an auto, was found not guilty by a jury today in the Superior Criminal Court at Cambridge.

CANADIAN CAPTAIN IS HELD AS SMUGGLER

Captain Rudolph Ziroux, a member of the Canadian Ambulance Corps, and Oscar A. L. Johnson, his chauffeur, were arraigned in the Federal Court today on a charge of smuggling twenty cases of whiskey from Canada to this country. They pleaded not guilty. Ziroux was held in $5,000 and Johnson in $1,000.

Ledoux With Lantern Seeks "Honest" Arms Delegate

By International News Service.

Washington, Dec. 14. — Diogenes has nothing on Urbain Ledoux, the "Mr. Zero" of bread-line fame.

Armed with a lantern, symbolic of the seeker for honesty, Ledoux today picketed the Arms Conference, "searching for an honest delegate," he said.

Declaring that his original charges, the unemployed ex-soldiers and others, have been cared for as far as possible by him, he said those who needed him now are the delegates to the conference, "for they are not with God."

Clad in rough corduroy clothes and cap of a laborer, Ledoux was a conspicuous figure. He said he would picket the conference until the end.

WOMAN, IN FIGHT WITH DOG, NOW LYNN HEROINE

Fearless Way in Which She Conquered Mad Animal Wins City's Cheers

Mrs. Martha M. Rafuse, of No. 8 New Park street, Lynn, is the heroine of that city today. Barehanded, she captured a mad dog that bit six persons and scattered scores who were waiting to vote at the Corbett School, Lynn.

After the dog had run riot on the street, snapping, snarling and biting everything in its path, it entered the hencoop of Mrs. Rafuse. When she heard the noise, Mrs. Rafuse rushed out and started for the dog. The dog leaped at her throat, but she grabbed him by the jaws and hung on while she screamed for help.

A police officer arrived and slipped a noose over the dog's head and dragged it into the yard. There the dog slipped from the noose but a bullet from the officer's gun ended its life. In the struggle Mrs. Rafuse received a slight scratch.

Physicians are not certain whether or not it is a bite by the mad dog. The wound has been cauterized.

ROXBURY MAN IS HELD IN KILLING OF FATHER OF 4

Burrell Street Man Is Also Charged With Attempt to Slay Witness

Charged with the murder of Joseph A. McCauley of No. 43 Burrell street, Roxbury, father of four young children, Pasquale Colasante, forty-three years old, of Burrell street, Roxbury, was arraigned before Judge Hayden in Roxbury court today and held without bail until December 21 for hearing.

In addition to the murder charge, Colasante was accused of assault with intent to commit murder upon Thomas McCauley, No. 43 Copeland street, Roxbury, who was held in $500 bail as a material witness to the killing and assault.

According to the police, Colasante met Joseph and Leo McCauley brothers, and Carney on Burrell street, and a quarrel started. Later Colasante returned, accompanied by another man whom the police are seeking, and renewed the fight.

Carney said that he and Leo attempted to act as peacemakers, but that in doing so he received a deep cut in his hand and a slash across the throat, which required a dozen stitches to close it. He alleged Colasante inflicted both cuts.

The police declared in court today that Colasante had admitted stabbing McCauley.

Mrs. McCauley is prostrated by the murder of her husband, who left her with four small children to care for. The eldest, Catherine and Marie, are twins, seven years old.

GIRLS ARMED TO FIGHT HUGGER AT STAMFORD

Stamford, Ct., Dec. 14.—Girls and women of Stamford who are forced to be on the street after dark are going armed in fear of an attack by a maniac hugger. He has hugged half a dozen young women and girls in the last week. His latest victim, Miss Jane Wright, a singer, whom he embraced as she was entering the Women's Club, described the hugger as a "half-starved looking young man, with unkempt hair and wild eyes." Meantime some women are carrying ammonia squirting guns, clubs and even revolvers when they leave home at night.

MAYOR PUTS 69 MEN TO WORK AT $4 A DAY

Mayor Peters today announced that he had authorized the employment of sixty-nine men at $4 a day as auxiliary teamsters in the Sanitary Bureau of the Public Works Department. The men will be used in augmenting the forces now employed in collecting ashes and garbage in the South End, Roxbury and Charlestown districts.

TO CALL TROOPS IN KANSAS COAL STRIKE

All Organizations in State Told to Prepare to Entrain for Service

By Associated Press.

Topeka, Kan., Dec. 14. — Notices were sent today to all National Guard organizations in the State, comprising about two thousand men, to prepare to entrain for the Pittsburg coal field.

Colonel Milton R. McLain, in charge of the adjutant-general's office, said orders would go out today for a movement of five or six companies to the coal field.

Petticoat Army 3,000 Strong Marches on Mines

By International News Service.

Pittsburg, Kan., Dec. 14.—The "Amazon Army," wives, sisters, sweethearts and mothers of the 10,000 striking coal miners in the Kansas field, was sweeping toward Cherokee County today.

The mines in Crawford County had fallen before their attacks of last two days.

Today they headed for the Scammond district, the anti-Howatt territory, nineteen miles to the south of Crawford County.

Reports stated that over 3,000 women were on the march. Other reports said as many as 6,000 were in the "petticoat army."

As soon as the grand offensive started Sheriff Milt Gould, realizing that the police were powerless, sent a call to Topeka for troops. The request was granted, and it is expected that over a thousand State militiamen will be in the district before night.

WILL SEIZE 100 BRITISH IN INDIA, DAS DECLARES

Asserts Steps Will Be Taken for Capture of Officials This Week

By International News Service.

Washington, Dec. 14.—Hostages will be taken by the Indian Nationalists for every Nationalist leader taken by the British, Taraknah Das, international secretary of the Friends of Freedom for India, representative in Washington of the Indian Nationalists, declared today.

For the seizure of C. R. Das, president of the All-India National Congress, India, several days ago, Nationalist India will take as hostages one hundred British officials, Das stated.

Das said that steps were being taken for the capture of the British officials this week.

Taraknah Das, who is a brother of the president of the All-India Nationalist Congress, today said:

"Nothing British authorities in India may do can possibly stop the revolutionary movement now. It will spread like wildfire.

"Rudyard Kippling, in his famous poem, 'Grave of the Hundred Dead,' speaks of a mother in a Burman village, who mourns over the grave of the son who has killed a British Sahib. Graves of the British Sahibs will be multiplied one hundredfold by the revolution, which this week shall spread over all India."

LAWRENCE CONTRACTS PROBED BY GRAND JURY

Salem, Dec. 14.—The Essex County Grand Jury met in special session today to investigate alleged awards of contracts in Lawrence in violation of the city charter, and also a charge of bribery against a Methuen police officer and charges of mismanagement against the Essex County Commission. District Attorney S. Howard Donnell said the Lawrence matters would probably be taken up first, and that there would be no report before next week.

MAGICIAN HELD FOR MUTILATING COINS

Salo Ansbach, a magician and sight-of-hand artist, was arraigned in Federal Court today on a charge of unlawfully causing to be mutilated genuine fifty-cent pieces. He was held in $500 bail. Ansbach had the coins grooved in such a way that one could be concealed inside another. After his arraignment Ansbach gave an informal exhibition in the court corridor of his art.

LOWER FREIGHT FOR FARM STUFFS ASKED

Washington, Dec. 14.—Thirteen recommendations, including legalization of co-operative marketing combinations, lowering of freight rates on agricultural products and establishment of agricultural attaches in European capitals, are set forth in a report of the joint congressional commission on agricultural inquiry filed today in the Senate.

BRAVAS, UNDER GUARD, TAKEN TO PRISON

Added Precautions Made to Prevent Renewal of Outbreaks of Last Summer

Barnstable, Dec. 14.—Fearing a repetition of hostile demonstrations which followed their arrests last Summer, John Dias, Benjamin Gomes and Joseph Andrews, the three Bravas, sentenced to serve from 20 to 25 years for assault on Miss Gertrude Butler at Bourne last August, were hurriedly removed to State Prison today.

Every precaution was taken to protect the three negroes, who broke down and wept when Judge Lummus pronounced sentence. The Barnstable jail was heavily guarded last night.

Armed guards were stationed within and outside the little jail, where last Summer angry mobs gathered, threatened violence to the three youths and were only dispersed by detachments from the Massachusetts State Guard.

The hurried removal of the prisoners today was entirely unexpected and caused considerable surprise. It had been previously announced they would be held here pending possible filing of exceptions by counsel.

Officials would make no comment, except that they had decided it best to remove the prisoners.

The men were heavily guarded in the automobile which carried them to State prison. Following close in the rear was a machine containing six prison keepers, armed with shotguns.

A cordon of constables was thrown around the little jail before the negroes were led from their cells to the waiting machine outside. These precautions proved unnecessary, however, as there was no one except the officials and guards about when the prisoners were transferred, due to the sudden removal decision.

FRANCE WILLING TO HOLD UP PAYMENTS

Paris, Dec. 14. (By the Associated Press.)—France is willing temporarily to forego cash reparation payments from Germany, a high official in the French Foreign Office today told the Associated Press.

This official said there was general recognition by the press and in official officialdom that Germany must be aided, if future indemnity payments were to be forthcoming.

A general economic understanding between France and Germany is an early probability, it was said today in authoritative quarters. The movement, it was said, was started by President Millerand in a recent conversation with German Ambassador Mayer, and has been helped by Premier Briand, who expects to leave for London Sunday to discuss the question with Lloyd George.

WOUNDED ALLSTON MAN HELD IN AUTO THEFT

Edward D. Wright, twenty-two years old, of No. 64 Brighton avenue, Allston, was still suffering from a revolver wound in the right leg when he was arraigned before Judge Bennett in Municipal Court today, charged with having stolen an auto belonging to Dr. Morris Eisner of Pittsfield. In custody from the police at Springfield, the police said, where another man was captured, Wright was shot in the right leg. He managed to reach the Allston house, where he remained until today, when he was arrested.

COUNT SZECHENYI MAY BE HUNGARIAN CHARGE

Budapest, Dec. 14 (By the Associated Press).—Exchange of ratifications of the peace treaty between the United States and Hungary, which was approved by the Senate in a Burnham Monday night, is expected within the next few days, Count Laszlo Szechenyi may accept appointment as Hungarian charge d'affaires in Washington.

ABOUT THE WAR DEBTS.

By arrangement with The New York World and Chicago Tribune.

Copyright, by The Press Publishing Co. (The New York World) and Chicago Tribune. Copyright in All Foreign Countries, Including Translations and Dramatizations Reserved.

In the official proceedings of the Washington Conference the war debts are never mentioned. It is an improper subject.

In the talks and discussions of the journalistic writings round about the Washington Conference the war debts are perpetually related. The nature of the discussion is so curious and interesting it throws so strong a light upon the difficulties that impede our path to any settlement of the world's ills upon the sound democratic basis of a world-wide will, that some brief analysis of it is necessary if an outline of the peace situation is to be complete.

In private talk almost universally, in the weekly and monthly publications that are here called "high brow," I find a very general assent that the bulk of these war debts and war preparation debts between Russia and France, quite bulk of the indemnity and reparations debt of Germany to the Allies, cannot be paid and ought not to be paid, and the sooner that this load of indebtedness is swept off of men's imaginations, the sooner we shall get on to the work of real reconstruction.

Only one of these debts is remotely payable, and that is the British debt to America. Even with regard to that debt the opinion rises to a high level of absurdity.

Gold Is Sleeping in American Vaults

The British authorities—it is an open secret—have been offering to begin the liquidation of their debt now. They cannot pay in gold because most of the gold in the world is already sleeping uselessly in American vaults, but they do offer what gold they have and in addition they are willing to get their factories to work and supply manufactured goods to the American creditor, clothes, boots, automobiles, ships, agricultural and other machinery, crockery and so on, and so on.

Nothing could be fairer. Britain is full of unemployed—they must be fed anyhow—and if America takes upon her industries being taxed under a pyramid of gold and manufactured articles, the British bankers and manufacturers believe they can, with an effort, manage the job and pull through.

The exchanges may take some strange flights and dives in the process, the British system may collapse even as the German system seems to be collapsing, but it is a strained situation anyhow. The British think the effort worth trying and the risk worth taking. And so behind the scenes it is washington rather than London that wants at present to hold up the payment of the British debt.

Only one other of the outstanding debts looks at all payable at the present time, and that is so much of the reparations debts of Germany to France as can be got in kind, in building material and manufactured goods not produced in France. The idea of any other payments or debt payments in full is just nonsense. The gold is not there and the stuff is not there, and there is no ability to produce anything like sufficient stuff under present conditions.

Suspicion That Nations Seek to Evade Debt

Now the interesting thing about the situation is that the understanding people in America do not seem to be explaining this very simple situation as frankly as they ought to do to the mass of American people, or at least that this explanation has not got through to the American people. There is a widespread conviction, which is sedulously sustained by the less intelligent or less scrupulous organs of the American press, that the wicked old European countries, and particularly Britain, that arch deceiver, are trying very cleverly and cunningly to evade the payment of a righteous obligation.

Let us be clear upon one point. So far as the British debt goes, the Americans can have it, if they prefer to take that line. The British here in Washington and the British writers here are here because the Americans invited them to come to discuss the world situation and the possibilities of world peace. They are not here to beg.

The time is not likely to arrive when one English speaking community will beg from another. It certainly has not arrived now.

However, I am an obstinate believer in the common sense and good will of the American people and I do not believe that a press campaign, designed to make a great people behave after the fashion of some hysterical back-street Oriental usurer who has struck a bad debt, is likely to do anything but recoil severely on the heads of those who have set it going. And I am not a believer in that sort of "Taxt" which would avoid reminding the American public of the circumstances under which these war debts were incurred.

War Debt Spent On War Material

The Russian debt to France was spent largely upon war and war preparations while Russia was the ally and helper of France; the war debts of the European allies to Britain and America and the British debt to America were spent upon war material. All these debts are for efforts spent upon a common cause. Each country spent according to its resources, as good allies should.

Russia gave life and blood—and blood. She gave four million men; she smashed up her own social fabric. France and Britain gave the lives of men beyond the mill on mark. Also they gave much material, an enormous industrial effort. So also did Italy, according to her power. The British developed a vast production of munitions as the war went on, using great supplies of material from America, for which they paid high prices, and on which great profits were made in America.

At last America joined the war, with her enormous reserves and strength, and gave not only great stores of material, but the lives of between fifty and seventy-five thousand men. And so, altogether, America and the allied powers, giving of their lives and substance as they could, saved civilization from imperialism.

The British do not grudge the contribution they have made, and set that they have still to contribute further shares in that colossal victory, but some of us English here are growing a little irritated at being damned as defaulters, when we are not going to default, and at having our attempts to work in co-operation with the Americans for the rehabilitation of a strained and collapsing civilization explained as the interested approaches of a cadging poor relation.

Easy to Excite People By Clamor

I wish that Americans would think of the Europeans more frequently as peoples like themselves. The boys who came to Europe saw the European armies in ranks like their own, good stuff and kindred stuff. They were their comrades in arms, they fought and died beside them. They saw countries and a common life very like the American country life; they discovered that the French and British and Italians were also "just folks." Then these American papers of the hostile sort write of France or Britain as if they were wicked old spiders. They write of Britain as a monster with a crown and an orgelous and such like concomitants loathsome to all sound democratic instincts.

They write of the "designs" of France and Italy and Britain as if these horrid monsters were all playing a fearsome game with each other for the soul and body of America. It is easy enough then to clamor for repayments of war debts. It is easy then to excite people by a clamor for a war bonus for the veterans of the great war to be saddled upon the European debtor.

AND so behind the scenes it is Washington rather than London that wants at present to hold up the payment of the British debt.

From the article by H. G. Wells.

Says Most of World's Yellow Metal Rests Uselessly in American Vaults.

But—let me remind the American reader that the real European debtor, the fellow on whom it will call, the fellow who will have to toil and pay and want, if you can realize that dream of pitiless exaction is no legendary monster France or Britain, it is that other fellow over there, you fought beside, it is the wounded man in blue and khaki you passed by as you went into action, it is the man who smiled his courage at you as you blundered against him in the din and confusion of battle.

If you listen to these stay-at-home patriots and these exotic admirers of yours, it is he who will pay, he and his wife and his child; they will all pay in toil and privation and worry and stunted lives. It is they who will pay—but you will not receive. You, too, will pay in disorganized business, in restricted product on, in underemployment. You will get nothing else out of it except whatever satisfaction you may feel in having made those people believe over there in Europe pay—and pay bitterly.

Another article by H. G. Wells in tomorrow's Boston American.

DOLLAR A DAY MAN GETTING $51 A DAY

Frankfort, Ky., Dec. 14.—James Poteet of Simpson County, Ky., is a dollar a day farmhand, yet his income is $51 a day. Land that he paid $10 for several years ago has begun to yield oil that brings a good income. But Poteet keeps on working for a dollar a day, board and lodging.

HAYNES ASKS JAIL TERMS FOR BREWERS

Washington, Dec. 14.—Prohibition Commissioner Haynes announced today that he would seek jail terms for brewers violate the Volstead law. The commissioner stated that he had instructed his counsel to institute proceedings against several breweries in Eastern Pennsylvania, and to ask the courts to inflict maximum penalties, including jail sentences.

Latest Word From Marie Suzanne

DRECOLL captures much of the spirit of the moyen age in a rose velvet gown, whose bodice uses the low waistline and long tight sleeves of that period. The skirt is attached at the side with cartridge pleats that cause the velvet to fall in full, graceful folds toward the bottom of the skirt, and the sides of the skirt are longer than the front and back. The gemmed pendant worn on a ribbon harmonizes charmingly with this costume.

THE smartly serviceable coat sketched at the left is of midnight blue duvetyn, trimmed on all its edges with gray astrakhan. The unusual feature of this model lies in the deep slits at the bottom of its skirt, which, outlined with the astrakhan, give a graceful fulness to the hemline.

FOCH SAILS FOR HOME WITH SIX CASES OF GIFTS

Montana Wild Cat and Potted Flower of Gold-Star Mother Among His Luggage

New York, Dec. 14.—By the Associated Press—Ferdinand Foch, gray and slight, but bearing with him everywhere that America could bestow upon one of alien citizenship, bade farewell to cheering throngs here today and sailed away to France.

In his baggage were six great cases filled with gifts from the people of this government, who thronged to see him during his tour of the United States and Canada and lend their voices in acclaim of the man who hurled Germany's legions back from the soil of France and won victory in history's greatest conflict. Since coming to America late in October Marshal Foch had traveled nearly 12,000 miles, made more than 500 speeches, attended luncheons and banquets beyond computation and had heard the voice of America from upwards of 17,000,000 men, women and children.

His baggage included a score and a half of parchments, attesting he has been accorded honorary degrees by America's leading universities and colleges. There was one crate full of Montana wildcat, of the bob-tailed, spitting, but not-very-dangerous type, presented by American Legion men.

And out in a little town of Indiana—where the Marshal's special train stopped for a few moments—he received from a wan-faced little woman a potted geranium.

"Take it," she implored, "and plant it on the grave of my son. He fell near Soissons."

The geranium has been carefully preserved and will be planted by Marshal Foch in his own garden "in honor of the son of the little woman of Indiana."

PETERS SIGNS ORDER FOR SALARY INCREASES

Mayor Peters today signed an order, recently passed by the City Council, increasing the pay of the chairman and secretary of the Board of Election Commissioners. The salary of Chairman M. C. Burlen is raised from $4,000 to $4,500 and that of Secretary Fred C. Finnegan from $3,500 to $4,000. The pay of the other members of the board remains unchanged.

UNION LEADER CHALLENGES SHOE MEN

Demands That They Produce All Elements of Cost and Distribution

Brockton shoe manufacturers produced charts designed to show a reduction of 21.4 per cent. in living costs in Massachusetts this year during arbitration today before the State Board of Conciliation and Arbitration of their dispute with their 24,000 operatives over a proposed 20 per cent. reduction in wages.

Dennis E. McCarthy, business agent of the Dressers' and Tuckers' Union, retorted that labor costs were but a portion of the total. He challenged the manufacturers to submit other elements of production and distribution costs to inquiry.

He insists that a 10 per cent. wage cut in the manufacture of a shoe retailing for $11 would mean a cut of but 10 or 12 cents in the price to the retailer.

President John S. Kent of the Brockton Shoe Manufacturers' Association said a resumption of prosperity in the shoe trades in that city depended on a cut in labor costs.

The arbitration is one of the largest, if not the largest, ever conducted in this State. Employes in thirty factories and a large investment of capital are affected.

CABLES HOPE IRISH PACT WILL BE UPHELD

James J. Phelan, chairman of the Massachusetts Committee for Relief in Ireland, received a telegram today from the headquarters of the National Committee for Relief in Ireland at New York, that it had sent the following cable to the Dail Eireann at Dublin:

"To the Honorable Eamon DeValera, Arthur Griffith, Michael Collins, Robert C. Barton, Gavan Duffy, Eamon Duggan and associates: The undersigned, who have been associated with the American Committee for Relief in Ireland, congratulate the President and cabinet upon the successful issue of the negotiations recently concluded in London and respectfully represent that in their opinion the vast majority of the American people including your kindred earnestly hope for ratification of the treaty by the Dail Eireann, thus putting an end to the exhausting struggle which for many years past has retarded the counsels of our people on both sides of the Atlantic and throughout the world.

"We are your unvarying friends in the future as in the past."

DRUG TRAFFIC PROBE PLANNED IN CONGRESS

Representatives of State Department Will Be Called by Committee

Washington, Dec. 14.—Plans for a thorough investigation of the international traffic in habit-forming drugs, to be made by the House Foreign Affairs Committee immediately after the Christmas holidays, were discussed by Chairman Porter of the committee and Representative Julius Kahn of California.

Mr. Kahn is author of a resolution expressing the sense of Congress that the traffic should be stamped out, and requesting the American delegates to the Washington conference to arrange another international conference at which steps shall be decided upon for the suppression of the traffic.

Before a date is set for public hearings on the resolution, Mr. Porter said he would confer with Secretary of State Hughes. The State Department files contain much data on the subject, and Chairman Porter is desirous to have representatives of the department testify before his committee. Mr. Porter also explained that he did not want to have the congressional investigation in any way embarrass any diplomatic efforts that might now be under way for suppression of the traffic in drugs.

In addition to representatives of the State Department, persons who have made a study of the traffic in habit-forming drugs and the results of the traffic in all parts of the world as well as in the United States, will be called to testify before the Foreign Affairs Committee.

STORE ROBBED OF $500 DURING FOCH PARADE

Springfield, Dec. 14.—Gunsberg & Co., clothiers of No. 236 Main street, closed their store during the parade in honor of Marshal Foch. All employes knocked off work. But a couple of strangers decided the time was ripe for their business. So they entered through a rear door, knocked the safe for a goal and departed with $500 in cash.

FINDS MOTHER ILL ABED WITH THREE CHILDREN

Haverhill, Dec. 14.—Policeman Henry Mailloux, investigating a complaint that nothing had been seen of the family of James Labrie for several days, visited their home on Ayer street. When he could not gain admittance, he broke in the door. He found Mrs. Labrie with an infant son in bed, while Mary, seven years old, and Henry, six, were huddled under bed clothes. There was no food or fuel in the house.

City Physician Stokes found Mrs Labrie suffering from pneumonia and ordered her removal to the Gale Hospital. The father has been out of work for weeks and only succeeded in getting a job today.

Get Rid of Your Fat

Thousands of others have gotten rid of theirs without dieting or exercising, often at the rate of over a pound a day, and without payment until reduction has taken place.

I am a licensed practising physician and personally prescribe the treatment for each individual case, thus enabling me to choose remedies that will produce not only a loss of weight harmlessly, but which will also relieve you of all the troublesome symptoms of overstuutness such as shortness of breath, palpitation, indigestion, rheumatism, gout, asthma, kidney trouble and various other afflictions which often accompany overstuutness.

My treatment will relieve that depressed, tired, sleepy feeling, giving you renewed energy and vigor, a result of the loss of your superfluous fat.

You are not required to change in the slightest from your regular mode of living. There is no dieting or exercising. It is simple, easy and pleasant to take.

If you are overweight do not postpone but sit down right now and send for my free trial treatment and my plan whereby I am to be paid only after reduction has taken place if you so desire.

Boston American Hopes to Make Christmas Happy for All in Want

Fifteen hundred letters appealing for food have been received by the Boston American Christmas Basket Fund Editor during the past forty-eight hours. Never in the history of the fund have so many letters asking aid been received in such a short space of time.

The receipt of so many letters indicates more clearly than words the extreme destitution that exists in metropolitan Boston at present. Persons who assisted the fund last year are among those who are appealing for aid this year.

All of these letters are turned over to capable Christmas Fund workers, who make a careful inquiry into each case to determine whether the family is needy. Persons in a position to buy their own Christmas dinners need not expect a parcel of Christmas food from the Boston American's Fund.

FOOD FOR NEEDY ONLY.

That many people who can well afford to buy their own Christmas dinners are not bothered by their conscience is indicated by the number who have already applied for food. These efforts to take food that belongs to hungry children will fail. In one district alone more than 100 such cases have already been rejected by the investigators.

The careful manner in which the Christmas Fund Editor seeks to place the food properly is one of the features that commends the fund to contributors.

Unless contributions to the Fund come in much faster during the next ten days thousands of persons will go hungry on Christmas Day. The Boston American's Christmas Fund will endeavor to feed as many of these unfortunates as possible and will be limited only by the amount of money obtained. A contract has been signed for 3,500 parcels of food and if sufficient money is received, more will be ordered.

Many Boston business firms and professional men are contributing to the Fund. A check for $10 came from Jordan, Marsh Company. One for $5 was contributed by the Boston branch of the Kelly-Springfield Motor Truck Company. Another for $16 represents a contribution from the men in the Boston office of the Metropolitan Life Insurance Company. Attorney Michael H. Sullivan sent $5.

DANCE IN QUINCY.

Hundreds of persons are planning to attend the entertainment and dancing party to be conducted in Alpha Hall, Quincy, tomorrow night, under the personal direction of Mrs. O. D. Williams of that city. This is the second annual party given under Mrs. Williams' auspices in behalf of the American's Fund. She promises one of the best entertainments ever produced in the city of Quincy.

Many talented artists have contributed their services for the event.

Miss Mary V. Corbett reports that she expects a crowded house in the attendance at the motion picture and vaudeville show in aid of the fund at Cross Street Orpheum, Somerville Friday evening, December 23. Many high-class acts have been arranged for the affair.

A big vaudeville show in aid of the Fund will be conducted in South Boston Municipal Building on Broadway Wednesday evening, December 21, under the personal direction of Helen M. Roche, organist and musical director of St. Augustine's Church of that district. Miss Roche is widely known as a director of amateur shows throughout Greater Boston. The admission price will be within reach of all, thirty-five cents. A show worth many times that amount will be given.

FRAMINGHAM CABARET.

A big cabaret and dancing party in aid of the Fund will be conducted in the Casino at Framingham, on Wednesday evening, December 21, under the auspices of the Wianno Girls' Club. This club is composed of attractive Natick and Framingham girls who have the interest of hungry kiddies at heart.

The committee in charge of the affair is headed by Miss Mary Griffin of Natick. Those assisting her include her sister, Gertrude, Margaret Gallagher, Margo vite Dupre and Miss Agnes Hoban of Framingham.

S. P. C. A. PLANS XMAS FESTIVAL FOR HORSES

In the monthly report of the Massachusetts Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to animals, President Francis H. Rowley announces that the Horses' Christmas Tree will be held in Pos. Office square, Saturday, December 24.

In November, officers of the society investigated 738 cases; examined 4,711 animals; made twenty-one prosecutions, with seventeen convictions; took seventy horses from work, and humanely destroyed 127 horses and 436 small animals. In the stock-yards and abattoirs, 89,781 animals were inspected; and 193 cattle, swine and sheep humanely destroyed.

DEVICE PERFECTED BY PROFESSOR SANBORN

An explanatory paragraph printed with a photograph of a device for the measuring of oxygen consumed by a hospital patient, which appears on the picture page of today's American, refers to Professor Frank B. Sanborn as the inventor. As a matter of fact the device was developed at the Carnegie Nutrition Laboratory in Boston, and was perfected by Professor San-

CLOGGED BLOOD WITHERS THE BODY

Workers Sick and Weak from Exertion Take Gude's Pepto-Mangan

Men and women who toil, either physically or mentally, use up energy. When they overwork they use up more energy, and sometimes the blood gets in a run-down condition. Without rest the blood cannot get back to normal, so that it becomes clogged with waste matter from over-exertion.

The clogged blood virtually withers the body. The strained looks on pale faces, the thin, bloodless arms, the sunken cheeks and necks, the dead-tired feeling, are the results of vitals blood depriving the system of life-giving oxygen.

Workers go to the drug store and get Gude's Pepto-Mangan when they feel weak and run down. They take it in either the liquid or the tablet form. That makes the blood rich and red and drives out the poisons. Life-giving oxygen, carried by the little red cells, renews the strength and builds up the entire system. Look for the name "Gude's Pepto-Mangan" on the package.—Advertisement.

BETTY ALDEN'S COMMENT ON AFFAIRS OF SOCIETY

Coming Dennison House Dance Interests the Smart Set of the Hub

By BETTY ALDEN.

JUST a week from tonight will find the most representative members of Boston's smart set at the Copley-Plaza, for it is next Wednesday that the supper dance in aid of Dennison House takes place.

One notes with interest the names of the committee in charge of the dance, for while serving on the committee are all quite naturally of the fashionable contingent, men, matrons and maids of the debutante set are included. Of the men are Messrs. Horace Binney, Philip S. Dalton, Robert W. Emmons 3d, G. Peabody Gardner, Jr.; the matrons include Mesdames L. Cushing Goodlnclude Mesdames L. Cushing Good-Lang, Frederick S. Whitwell and E. Preble Motley; also on the committee is Corina S. Higginson, while Lucy C. Fiske and Peggy Porter with their good work on the committee are determined to show the older set that being a debutante is not synonymous with being that much-maligned article—a flapper.

Peggy Porter, by the way, is by far one of the season's most important buds, and has already been most extensively entertained. She is the daughter of the Charles Allen Porters of Beacon street, whose older daughter, Isabel Porter, made her debut last year. Somewhat over a month ago Peggy was elected debutante vice-chairman of the provisional group of the Junior League, an office of importance and singular distinction, and only a few days ago this popular young deb was of the group of girls elected to membership in the Vincent Club. Speaking of Miss Porter reminds me that she and Helen Scott of Wellesley are two of Boston's younger set who will attend the presentation ball which Mr. and Mrs. Payne Whitney of New York are giving for their daughter, Joan Whitney, at the Hotel Plaza on December 20th, just the night before the Dennison House dance.

With such a committee in charge of the latter affair, it is only natural that the list of patronesses should include the creme de la creme of the socially elect. The list is too long to be printed in full, but it includes such names as Mesdames Francis R. Appleton, Jr., Walter C. Baylies, Edwin A. Boardman, 2d, Frederick J. Bradlee, Gorham Brooks, Harold J. Coolidge, Charles P. Curtis, George L. DeBlois, Richard C. Dixey, William C. Loring, Charles L. Lovering, George R. Minot, Everett Morss, George S. Mumford, Robert L. Paine, 2d, Andrew J. Peters and Richard M. Saltonstall.

G. Peabody Gardner, Jr., will don the role of head usher for the evening, and is to be assisted by an efficient corps of young men, including Robert W. Emmons, 3d, Roger Amory, Malcolm Bradlee, Edward S. Brewer, George B. Cabot, Samuel Eliot, George R. Fearing, Jr., Theodore Frothingham, S. Eliot Gould, Philip Mason Sears, W. Ellery Sedgwick, Ridley Watts, Jr., and George L. Wrenn, 2nd.

Needless to say, there has been a great demand for tables for Wednesday evening's dance, which may be obtained by writing to Mrs. E. Preble Motley, at No. 97 Beacon street. Louw's Orchestra has been engaged for the dancing.

That organization, the Vincent Club, which plays such a prominent part in the social life of the younger set of Boston, recently held a meeting at which officers for the coming year were elected, as well as a group of new members.

In recent years this club has established an enviable reputation for the very excellent shows which it puts on annually and at which the most talented and attractive girls of the smart set are given an opportunity of showing their histrionic powers.

The newly elected members are Mary Hallowell, Marion Emmons, Betty Cole, Ethel Cummings, Frances Sturgis, Ellen Whitney, Anne Cabot, Barbara Reynold, Katherine Coolidge, Charlotte Richardson, Helen Sullivan, Marion Penno, Margaret Houghton, Leonora Trafford, Eleanor Sutton and Helen L. Scott.

Miss Edith Perkins was elected president, but resigned immediately, so Mrs. William S. Russell, the present president, will continue in office until after the New Year. Mrs. Augustus Thorndike, Jr., was chosen vice-president and Miss Mary Hunnewell, second vice-president. The other officers were re-elected.

Verily is Craigie Circle, Cambridge, becoming a Mecca for newly wedded couples of the first family contingent. Mr. and Mrs. George H. Lyman, Jr. (Eleanor Higginson), whose marriage took place November 23 at St. Paul's Cathedral, are the most recent to join this smart young colony, having taken an apartment at No. 5. In the same house the Thomas R. Morses (Eleanor Whitney) have also taken an apartment. The latter couple were also married at St. Paul's.

Betty Alden.

MRS. SAMUEL HOAR, JR.

Mrs. Samuel Hoar, Jr. is but one of the many society matrons who devote a good part of their time to charity. Mrs. Hoar, whose home in Concord is known as "Atavista," helped at the bazaar given in aid of "Little House."

MRS. GRAFTON MINOT of Boston was among the guests at the reception which the Belgian Ambassador and Baroness de Cartier gave at the Capital on Monday night. Theodore Roosevelt was also among the guests.

Mr. and Mrs. Neal Wainwright (Mona Crozer), whose marriage took place last week, are spending their honeymoon at the Ambassador Hotel, in Atlantic City. Mr. Wainwright is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Wainwright of Boston. After a fortnight's visit the young people will make their home at No. 638 Lexington avenue, New York.

Of society women working for the Doll and Toy Sale which takes place today at Mrs. Walter C. Baylies' home at No. 5 Commonwealth avenue are Miss Frances Clark, chairman; Mrs. Theodore Frothingham, Jr., Mrs. Charles Harrington, Mrs. Helen Draper Taft, Mrs. Henry Tudor and Mrs. Wallace Goodrich. The sale is in aid of the Boston Infants' Hospital.

WALES TO WED LADY RACHEL CAVENDISH

Reported Betrothed to Daughter of Canada's Former Governor-General

By Universal Service.

London, Dec. 14.—Mayfair is extremely busy discussing the reported coming announcement of the engagement of the Prince of Wales to Lady Rachel Cavendish, fourth daughter of the Duke of Devonshire, former Governor-General of Canada.

According to the informant of Universal Service, the betrothal will be formally announced immediately following the arrival home of the Prince from his trip to India, the wedding to take place some time in the Fall of 1922.

Lady Rachel, who is a favorite of British society, is the most intimate friend of Princess Mary and will be bridesmaid at the latter's marriage in February.

Lady Rachel is well known in Canada, New York and Washington society, where she was entertained extensively while her father was in Canada.

The Prince and Lady Rachel have been friends since childhood and he was much in her company when at home.

ADDICT LAUDS DRIVE AGAINST DRUG EVIL

Condemns Methods Used by Courts in Committing Unfortunate Victims

hope that the Boston American will, as it always has, do a little to help the unfortunates who are addicted.

"Maybe the public is unaware of the fact that this wealthy Commonwealth has absolutely no hospital or facilities to take care of those who will be affected by this campaign. Any addict desirous of treatment, and it is acknowledged by authorities that they must have it, must first humiliate himself before the community where he lives by having a magistrate commit him to an institution for treatment.

"My own experience was—and I am an addict of ten years—after applying for commitment, I was sent to the Tewksbury Insane Hospital, where I was given absolutely no medical treatment but put in with raving maniacs and left to do the best I could.

"This State at one time had an institution at Peadville, the Norfolk State Hospital, which was second to none in the country for the treatment of drug addiction, and the treatment was one that gave hope to many of the unfortunates.

"The doctor in charge knew more of drug addiction from the addicts' standpoint than any that I have since met, and I have taken several so-called treatments. If the State would provide the means for addicts like myself who are respectable, hard-working and have families, to obtain suitable treatment without publicity, then they would not view with dread the proposed campaign, knowing that the Boston American is ever looking for a change to help the unfortunate.

COCAINE MOST VICIOUS DRUG, SAYS WEBBER

Responsible for Exceedingly Dangerous Form of Criminal, He Declares

Abraham C. Webber, formerly Assistant District Attorney of Suffolk County and generally recognized as one of the best authorities on the Illicit drug traffic, has written a series of articles for the Boston American dealing with the scope and dangers of the evil.

Mr. Webber is one of the oldest of the Legislative counsel before the Massachusetts bar. Because of his ability and knowledge of the subject he was appointed to serve on a special drug commission created by the Massachusetts Legislature in 1916, with Dr. Frank G. Wheatley, chairman, and Dr. Sherman Kingsbury, Director Division Food and Drugs, State Department of Health.

ABRAHAM C. WEBBER

By ABRAHAM C. WEBBER.

Cocaine is the most virulent of habit-forming drugs. It makes maniacs and criminals. Outrages on women in certain sections of the country are directly traceable to excessive use of cocaine.

The use of cocaine is an American habit. It is the most menacing of all drug conditions. It is called "snow" because of its glint-like appearance. If eliminated from pharmacopoeia it would not be missed.

The damage done to society by cocaine as compared with morphine may be likened to the difference between the effect of TNT to that of ordinary gun powder.

The rapid growth of the use of cocaine is marked by the avidity of our criminal classes in acquiring the vice. It produces in criminals the most unusual degree of violence and abnormal crime. In resisting arrest a cocainist will not hesitate to murder.

INSANITY FOLLOWS.

Cocaine is snuffed through the nose or injected through the skin. A morphinist will take to cocaine to offset the depression which follows the use of morphine. The use of cocaine through the nose in time destroys the septum or partition between the nostrils.

Cocaine induces exaltation, uncontrollable laughter, wild, aimless talk, staggering and vivid hallucinations. Then comes depression, melancholia, fear of persecution and insanity. An addict is then in condition to commit crime.

From a medical standpoint there is very little excuse for the existence of cocaine. Its only essential use is by surgeons as a local anaesthetic in minor and superficial operations. The general practitioner has no use for cocaine at all.

This does not appear to be generally known or understood. Dentists have almost dispensed with cocaine because of its tissue-destroying effect, by substituting novocaine, which is not a habit-forming drug.

PURELY A DISSIPATION.

The anaesthetic properties of cocaine were discovered by Keller in 1884, but the baneful possibilities of its use were not recognized for some years. Illinois was the first State to legislate against it in 1897, and Massachusetts followed in 1898.

The danger to the public first became apparent when the country was flooded with cocaine in the form of "catarrh cures," so-called. Even children were found to be using it. A campaign, in which the Hearst newspapers took an active part, put an end to the business.

The use of cocaine is purely a dissipation. There is no great suffering incident to the stopping of the use of cocaine as in the case of morphine. If a cocainist cannot secure any more cocaine he stops the use of it and that is all there is to it.

Its habitual use does not bring on the anguish and suffering comparable to that of morphine. The use of morphine is a calam ty which enslaves the habitual user, so that he cannot abandon its use of his own volition.

STOP MANUFACTURE.

Here again I have endeavored, without success, to find out from the federal authorities the amount of cocaine alkaloid manufactured in this country. The United States treasury reported in 1912 that 150,000 ounces of cocaine are illegitimately used each year to make fiendish criminals of human beings. That was almost ten years ago. The amount has undoubtedly increased since.

Stop the manufacture of cocaine and its salts absolutely; forbid its importation and sale, and the importation of coca leaves from which cocaine and its salts are made; prohibit cocaine from being carried, even in drug stores, unless covered by an unlawful possession, and watch the decrease in all forms of maniacal crime.

Isn't the experiment worth trying?

Dies While at Work

George B. Ettinson, shipper for a Washington street firm of tobacconists, died suddenly at his work today. When he collapsed he was rushed to the Relief Hospital, but was pronounced dead on arrival there. He was seventy-seven years old and lived at Keefe's Hotel on Columbus avenue.

A Naughty Drama

Even the actors rebelled. It was too shocking for them. The Leading Lady at the Lyric said, "No! Rather would I resign than play this part!" And the Leading Man? That worthy gentleman covered his face in shame at the lines he refused to speak. An illustrated story for those who are sincerely interested in the uplift of the American stage. MAYOR CHILDS WINS FIGHT IN NEWTON

Re-elected After Bitter Contest With Rogers and "Blue-stocking" Element

Mayor Edwin O. Childs of Newton was re-elected in one of the most spirited election contests ever held in that suburb, defeating his opponent, Leon B. Rogers, by a total of over 2,000 votes in a landslide that buried practically every candidate put forward by the Rogers forces.

Every one of the six candidates for Aldermen-at-large indorsed by the Childs supporters was swept into office. Bitter antagonism had marked the fight, with the "blue-stocking" element lined up solidly behind Rogers.

One of the features of the election was that the force of Childs sentiment was strong enough to elect Fred L. Smith, hitherto unheard of as a political figure, as Alderman-at-large from Ward 3 over C. Sinclair Weeks, son of Secretary of War Weeks.

The vote for the Mayoralty candidates was as follows: for Childs, 9,071; for Rogers, 5,835.

Aldermen-at-large were elected as follows: In Ward 1, William C. Earle defeated Elliot B. Church; in ward 2, George W. Grebenstein defeated C. Haviland Morse; in ward 3, Fred Smith defeated C. Sinclair Weeks; in ward 4, Harold S. Young defeated E. James Winslow; in ward 5, Thomas W. White defeated Arthur D. Colby; in ward 7, Arthur W. Hollis defeated Henry D. Lloyd. All of the winners were Childs men.

A licensing scheme for sellers of non-intoxicating beverages was defeated by a majority of approximately 2,000 votes. Two of the three ward councilmen elected were Childs men.

Webster Is Elected Mayor of Somerville

Former Alderman John M. Webster, Republican, was elected mayor of Somerville, carrying every ward in the city but Ward 2, the Democratic stronghold. Webster received 10,620 votes to 8,394 votes cast for John J. Murphy, the Democratic candidate, and veteran of the World War. In Ward 2 Murphy received 1,131 votes and Webster 323.

The board of aldermen will be made up of eighteen Republicans and three Democrats, while there will be ten Republicans and four Democrats on the school committee, in addition to the mayor and president of the board of aldermen, who are ex-officio members of the committee. There will be three women in the school committee, the largest number to ever sit in that body. Julia A. Crowley from Ward 1, Katherine C. Coveney in Ward 4 and Minnie Turned in Ward 5.

Alderman Robert C. Harris was re-elected alderman-at-large from Ward 2, receiving 7,945 votes, while Fred Wilson who ran as independent candidate secured 4,768 votes throughout the city. In Ward 2, Alderman Joseph A. Haley and John J. Holan were elected as the Democratic members. The vote was: Elgabroadt 165; Haley 907; Holan 928 and Sheeran 303. In Ward 1 Alderman William F. Burns and John R. Spiers were elected ward aldermen and Julia A. Crowley and Dr. Francis J. Fitzpatrick were elected to the school committee.

Recount to Be Asked in Lynn Election

There were several surprises in the city elections outside Boston.

A recount will be asked in Lynn, where the first returns gave Mayor Walter H. Creamer a margin of only 58 over Harland A. McPhetres, former commander of Post 6, American Legion.

In Lowell George H. Brown, who in 1909 was elected as the first policeman-mayor in New England, defeated Mayor Perry B. Thompson for re-election by 353 votes. A bitter campaign brought out nearly 23,000 of the 30,000 registered votes. Brown had no machine and hardly any campaign fund.

Ex-Representative Lawrence F. Quigley was elected mayor of Chelsea by a plurality of 1,554 over Alton E. Briggs. He is twenty-two years old, the youngest mayor-elect of the city in thirty-one years. Richard A. Yoke, president of the Board of Aldermen, was defeated for re-election.

Mayor Angier L. Goodwin was re-elected in Melrose, defeating former Mayor Charles H. Adams, chairman of the State Commission on the Necessaries of Life, by 537 votes.

REPUBLICANS WIN IN REVERE.

Republicans made a clean sweep in Revere, electing nine members of the city council, an assessor and two school committeemen. No Mayor was to be elected this year.

In Medford the candidates for alderman-at-large indorsed by the Rent and Taxpayers' Association, defeated those indorsed by Mayor Haines.

Incomplete returns in Everett indicated the election of Mayor Christopher Harrison, with ex-Mayor John J. Mullen, who ran on stickers, second, and ex-Representative Fred P. Greenwood third.

In Worcester, Mayor Peter F. Sullivan was re-elected for a third term, over his Republican opponent, Fred A. Minor, by a majority of 6,784. Aldermanic candidates elected were:

Ward 1, Hjalmar Johnson, R.; Ward 2, Michael J. O'Hara, R.; Ward 3, Edward J. Kelley, D.; Ward 4, Elias H. Hoefler, D.; Ward 6, Joseph W. Leyden, D.; Ward 6, Olof F. Ohlson, R.; Ward 7, Frank E. Colesworthy, R.; Ward 8, Howard A. Nash, R.; Ward 9, J. Francis Bonifanzio, R.; Ward 10, Edward E. Stone, R.

WHITE LOSES IN LAWRENCE.

Daniel W. Mahony was elected Mayor of Lawrence, defeating Mayor William P. White by about 4,000.

In Woburn, Mayor Bernard J. Golden was unopposed for re-election. James E. Bagley, Agnes C. Doherty and Thomas H. McGowan were elected to the school board. The Republicans overturned a Democratic majority in the Board of Aldermen.

Mayor John W. Kimball of Malden was re-elected without opposition. Charter revision was badly beaten. Mrs. Arabella Wilson, the only woman on the ballot, was defeated for the Common Council in Ward 1.

Lawyers Can't Give Clients' Secrets to Grand Jury

Attorneys have a perfect right and are under professional obligation to keep even from the grand jury information of a confidential nature obtained in the capacity as legal advisors for clients.

This rule was emphasized today by Judge Philip J. O'Connell in the Superior Court, in a short address to nineteen members and the foreman of the Suffolk county grand jury.

L. R. Tiernan, former city solicitor for Chelsea, refused to give to the grand jury the name of a client. The matter was taken to Judge O'Connell.

The judge told the grand jurors that Tiernan had given Assistant Attorney-General Albert Hurwitz the name asked for, but that he was entirely within his right in refusing to do so until released by his client.

FILIPINOS IN NEW PLEA FOR LIBERTY

Declare 4-Power Treaty Now Makes Them Safe From Japanese Aggression

By International News Service.

Washington, Dec. 14.—The four-power Pacific treaty was today made the basis of a new plea for Independence for the Philippines in a letter presented to the President by the Philippine resident commissioners, Jaime C. Jayeyra and Isauro Gabaloon.

The plea for independence declared that in the past the principal objection to independence for the Philippines has been that such action might make way for Japanese aggression in the islands. It was declared that under the terms of the four-power Pacific treaty such aggression would be impossible and that, therefore, the great objection to independence was wiped out and the Philippine people are anxious that the administration take quick action to grant them governmental freedom.

EXTRA XMAS TRAIN FOR WELLESLEY GIRLS

The students at Wellesley College will leave for their Christmas holidays tomorrow and the Boston & Albany railroad has arranged to supply an extra train for the exclusive use of Wellesley students, which will leave Wellesley at 12:45 p. m., for direct run to Springfield and thence to New York city, stopping at Worcester.

The Southwestern Limited, leaving Boston at 2 p. m., for Chicago, St. Louis, Cincinnati and points in the West and Southwest, will run in two sections, and both trains will stop at Wellesley to take on passengers. The Wolverine, leaving Boston at 2:10 p. m., will also run in two sections, and both of these trains will also stop at Wellesley to take on passengers. Other trains for the West will also carry extra sleeping cars for the accommodation of students returning home for the holidays.

The Indispensable Food

MILK contains all of the elements necessary in furnishing energy to the body, in repairing worn out tissues and building up new, in regulating the various processes of the body, and in promoting growth and health. Yet it is the cheapest real food you have.

It is a grave mistake to try to "economize" on Milk, however small the amount of money you have for food.

For HEALTH'S sake, spend at least as much for milk as for meat and fish!

FINANCE AND BUSINESS

By B. C. FORBES

A touching phase of human nature is the unswerving loyalty of most big men to invest their sons with qualities and a reputation not always warranted by the unvarnished facts. I know men who would gladly give half their wealth could they make giants out of their more or less ordinary sons. This eagerness to glorify offspring sometimes is both beautiful and pathetic.

* * *

History reveals comparatively few instances of supermen begetting supermen. The few striking exceptions serve only to emphasize the general rule.

* * *

The praiseworthy desire of really notable men to portray their sons as having acquired every cultivated quality is brought to mind by Edison's enthusiasm over a new invention by his son, Theodore. The young man is still a student at the Massachusetts Institute of Technology. So that great things could not be expected of him thus early. Apparently, however, he has inherited some traces of his illustrious father's inventive genius, and it was good to read how enthusiastically Edison congratulated on his son's achievement. The world will watch eagerly for the thing of a new Edison to appear on the horizon.

* * *

Edison's oldest son also is a young man of unusual promise. He is now manager of the great Edison plants, and he exhibits very marked executive ability. He is popular and is extremely modest. I once met him and talked with him quite a while before I caught on to his identity.

* * *

Those who know Henry Ford will declare that the one thing uppermost in his mind and closest to his heart is his only son, Edsel. The automobile wizard has the most wonderful notions about Edsel's calibre and achievements. In Henry's eyes, Edsel is something of a demi-god. Others are not—at least not yet. I'm sure that Edsel Ford is a second Henry Ford. However, the son admittedly is the brighter, more studious, and infinitely ambitious, so that he may in time make his own mark.

* * *

The late J. P. Morgan was entirely different. He never under any circumstances sought to push forward his son, the present J. P. Morgan, into the limelight, and the latter was scrupulously careful never to obtrude himself in any way whatsoever. He worshipped his father and was not only willing but anxious that all the glory of the achievements of the house of Morgan should devolve upon his sire. The present J. P. Morgan is, of course, a second J. P. Morgan. He has no overwhelming desire to be in the spotlight as a financial Napoleon. He attends to business but he doesn't allow business to become his whole existence.

* * *

John D. Rockefeller, I have been told, was at first poignantly disappointed when his only son did not throw himself heart and soul into business but manifested deep interest in non-money-making activities. If this be true, Mr. Rockefeller has long since overcome his disappointment, for several years ago he confided to me with impressive earnestness and solemnity that he counted it one of God's great mercies to bless him that he had been given a son who was interested in and devoting himself to "the most worthwhile things of life."

* * *

Of course, young John D. Rockefeller does spend quite a part of his time attending to business affairs. He makes no pretensions of being a business genius. One who knows him through and through declares that if Young Rockefeller were not who he is, he would be a minister; that is what lies nearest to his heart. Incidentally, Mr. Rockefeller, Jr., like Morgan, always scrupulously avoids doing or saying anything which would savor of trying to share honors with his father.

* * *

One son of a prominent father who has been steadily, though not spectacularly, coming to the front during recent years is Walter C. Teagle, who is the only son of the late Jacob H. Schiff who built up the International Banking firm of Kuhn, Loeb & Company to its present powerful status. Only the other day someone told me about running into Mr. "Morrie" Schiff one evening and discovering that the banker was on his way to address a learned society on book-making in France in the eighteenth century, a subject far removed from the affairs of today.

* * *

George M. Reynolds, head of the largest bank in Chicago, has a son who early entered the financial field with every promise of equaling his father's stature. Another veteran Chicago banker, John J. Mitchell, has also, I am informed, an equally able son. The present head of Armour & Company, the present head of Morris & Company, and the present head of Swift & Company, all are examples of sons following in the footsteps of extraordinarily successful parents. All three are live, real, active, dominating chief executives of their respective plants.

* * *

Looking farther west, the sons of Robert Dollar, the Pacific ocean steamship and lumber magnate, are illustrations of second generation men of notable calibre. Steamship people declare that the young Dollars are among the ablest practical steamship men in the country—a statement which would seem to be confirmed by the fact that the Dollar steamship company has been able to operate successfully all through the period of intense depression in the shipping industry.

* * *

On the other hand, one could name a long list of present-day financial and business giants whose sons are the veriest pygmies. The affliction of having such sons is, however,

Stocks Rallied in Last Hour; Trading Active; Call Money Drops to 4½ Per Cent.

ACTIVE ISSUES STRONG AT THE CLOSE

Gains for Day Range as High as Four Points; Losses Average Small

By W. H. ROSS,
Financial Editor.

Most active issues showed gains in New York at the close, the market rallying in the afternoon and showing a strong undertone in the last hour. Trading was active, transactions approximating 1,000,000 shares. American Can and Chile sold at a new 1921 high, just before the finish. Gains for the day ranged from fractions to more than four points. Losses were few and averaged small at the end.

The market was reactionary in the last half of the morning and in the third hour, but, as usual of late, rallied in the afternoon, when Butte & Superior, Anaconda, Utah, Fisher Leather issues, California Petroleum preferred, Baldwin Locomotive and Woolworth advanced to year highs. St. Paul preferred had previously sold at a year low. Chandler Motor sold more than three points after the declaration of the regular dividend. It was largely a market for specialties. Pacific Oil was one of the most active petroleum stocks, selling at 20 or more all day as to price movement. Demand issues, including Sinclair Oil, Invincible and Production & Refining, were down in the afternoon, but the majority showed gains. Call money opened at 5 per cent., but by afternoon was offered at 4½ per cent. Demand sterling advanced to $4.17¾ in the morning, while French francs were strong also.

MARKET BEGAN STRONG.

The market had a strong beginning, gains ranging largely from initial sales in almost four-to-one ratio. Trading was of good volume at the outset and small kinds of stocks were in demand for awhile. The running in of shorts continued. Sumatra was an early feature, taking a course contrary to the general list. It dropped a point and a half within a few minutes, selling at its lowest since listed on the big exchange. It rallied quickly and became quiet. Mexican Petroleum reacted after starting with a small gain. Pan American issues were weakened. California Petroleum was the strong oil. Associated Oil was another notably weak issue, receding more than a point.

OILS UNDER PRESSURE.

Oils withstood the brunt of the selling pressure. Rails, shipping shares and rubbers were steady, equipments were firm and steels rather strong. Crucible moved up more than two points before midmorning and Railway gained one. Inspiration led coppers as to gains. Both this stock and Utah sold at new 1921 highs. Nicholson Johnson and Peoples Gas were on the same list. As before this week, profit-taking checked the advance and by the end of an hour there marked vegetal to irregular. Steels were helped by the statement that financiers are inspecting some of the properties, which coupled with the proposed merger of a number of independent companies.

ON A BETTER BASIS.

When Governor Harding of the Federal Reserve Board expressed the opinion that a revival of business is not remote he voiced the hope of the country. That there has been improvement in the general situation is admitted on all sides. He said he believed basic financial conditions are very much better than they were twelve months ago. Government withdrawals from New York banks tomorrow, which is tax payment day, will aggregate $20,000,000.

Wall Street Briefs

Government agricultural loans aggregating $125,976,000 were made by the War Finance Corporation, during the period from December 1 to December 10.

December allotments by the Federal Farm Loan Board to the twelve Federal Land Banks will amount to $2,000,000, which is the equivalent of 2,000 daily over-issued October allotments. Interest rate remains at 5½ per cent. Year preference dividend. It is reported from London.

For the June fiscal year J. & P. Coats, Ltd., England, reports net profits of £2,972,440, after depreciation and taxes, against £2,972,440 in the previous year. Ordinary dividends are 10 per cent.

Detroit Edison reports for itself and subsidiaries gross earnings of $3,000,000 and net $555,000, while not after dates increased $85,000. Gross earnings increased $1,000,000 and net $51,879 in gross and of $1,630,180 in net.

Gross earnings of Pacific Gas & Electric Company and subsidiaries for November were $1,000,000; net $500,000; after depreciation and taxes, $1,000,000 gross; $500,000 net.

Railroad Items

St. Louis & Southwestern reports for the first December week $151,007, decrease $1,000.

For the December 9 week the Atchison, Topeka & Santa Fe reports gross $3,000,000, decrease $1,000,000 from corresponding week last year.

Western Maryland reports a decrease of $171,611 in gross for the first week of December.

During first ten days of December the Chicago & Northwestern Railway reports a decrease of $1,000,000 in gross, with net $1,000,000 a year ago.

Missouri, Kansas & Texas gross decrease, week ended in the first December, $100,000.

Colorado & Southern reports $230,272 decrease in gross in the first December week.

Curley Again Beneficiary of Public Sentiment

A majority of the people of Boston appear to have chosen Mr. Curley as their chief magistrate. So be it.

Our democratic institutions require us to submit gracefully to the will of the majority.

If Mr. Curley is really elected we sincerely and honestly wish him a successful administration—successful in its efficiency, sincerity and honor. We shall be the first to praise its virtues and we shall be firm in pointing out its faults. For the sake of the city we hope that there will be few faults to point out. Mr. Curley can make it so if he wishes.

He is the beneficiary for the second time of that splendid public sentiment for what appears to be the under dog. If he is faithful to that sentimental bridge which carried him over he will go far. If he is again faithless to it he will throw away a magnificent opportunity.

Control of the Seas

If There Is Any Patriotism in Our National Government We Shall Not Recognize Britain's Claim

The other day the Boston American criticized Professor Hudson of the Harvard Law School for publicly expressing the opinion that we ought to recognize the right of Great Britain to rule the seas. This newspaper said that it was an unpatriotic sentiment and was inexcusable in any intelligent man who ought to know the history of Great Britain's use of her control of the seas and to understand commonest policies of prudence with respect to the attitude of one independent nation toward another independent nation.

We are very glad to be able to say that Professor Hudson was misquoted by the newspaper from which we obtained the report of his remark. On the contrary, we now understand that Professor Hudson denied the principle that Great Britain was entitled to control the seas, and regretted the extent to which this propaganda favoring the recognition of Great Britain's control of the seas has already permeated a certain class in America.

It is difficult for any intelligent and self-respecting American to be patient either with an Englishman and still less with an American who advances that idea. The theory upon which it is argued by the British is that Great Britain is not a self-supporting country, and that whoever should get control of the seas away from her could starve her to death.

Well, the control of the seas means ultimate starvation to almost any country against which it is exerted for a long enough period. But that is not the point. Great Britain is herself responsible for the danger in which she now stands if an enemy should get control of the seas, for it is she who has constantly extended the definition of what constitutes contraband of war until now it includes almost everything that a nation can use. In the beginning, contraband of war did not include food. It only included those articles which were immediately used for military purposes. Great Britain, having control of the seas, deliberately, wilfully, without precedent and without right or reason, by her own ukase, increased the articles which were to be considered contraband, until now, if she loses the control of the seas, the enemy, by applying her own principles, can starve her.

Now an international convention could revise the definition of contraband of war, and make it so that no nation can be starved. A blockade is one of the most cruel, fiendish things in war.

If the British theory of naval supremacy should be recognized it would be applied even more forcibly to military than to naval supremacy. France could say that she must be allowed to control the land, for if the army of any country which could reach the French frontiers is superior to hers, it could not only starve her, but destroy her. Germany could say the same thing. The French army could sweep over Germany and destroy every town and village and hamlet and every blade of grass in Germany. Control of the land by a superior army is far more destructive than control of the seas by a superior navy. There is nothing that a naval blockade can do that an invading army cannot do. The only difference is that a naval blockade is more undiscriminating.

If there is any statesmanship in our national government and any patriotism, we shall not recognize Great Britain's claim to control the seas.

"The Bland Chinee"

Also the Japanese—A Short Poem Worth Remembering

Copyright, 1921, Star Company

The wise men of the United States are measuring their wits against those of China and Japan—especially Japan.

What will come out of the discussion? Not much from Asia, not many concessions from THAT quarter, you may be sure.

To listen politely, inhale the breath, bow and smile is Asiatic. To hurry and rush is American. Hurry won't work when we deal with our gentle, patient, long-resisting friends from across the wide Pacific.

Mr. William L. Richard publishes a little pamphlet describing an ancient Thibetan manuscript. And on the cover he prints a very short poem, here reproduced for the edification of Washington statesmen.

Uncle Sam and his representatives, who are about to negotiate with the children that come from the setting sun, might keep these eight lines in mind:

It doesn't pay, on a Summer day,
To hustle the bland Chinee,
For the white man frets and fumes and sweats
While the yellow man sips his tea;
At the end of the day there's a tombstone gray
Which worries John Chinaman least;
For the Chink is shed, and a chump lies dead,
Who tried to hurry the East.

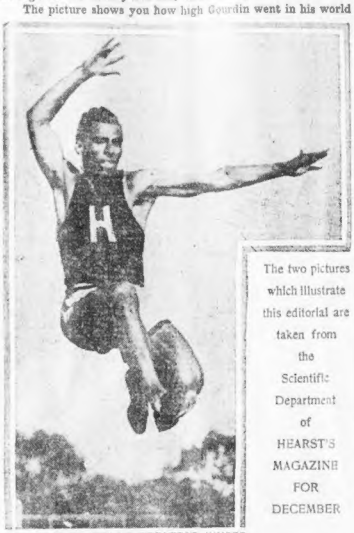
He's a Wonderful Jumper—

But Our Little Animal Brother Is More Wonderful

Copyright, 1921, Star Company

The colored athlete whose picture you see below, Edward O. Gourdin, member of the Harvard track team, broke the world's record for long distance jumping when he hurled his body through the air twenty-five feet three inches.

The picture shows you how high Gourdin went in his world



THE WORLD'S GREATEST JUMPER.

The two pictures which illustrate this editorial are taken from the Scientific Department of HEARST'S MAGAZINE FOR DECEMBER record-breaking jump. The total distance covered by his body, describing part of a circle, was, of course, much more than twenty-five feet.

It was the FIRST time that a man of the colored race ever set a new mark and won a world's championship in a track or field event.

So far as the records go no man had ever before jumped as much as twenty-five feet. Peter O'Connor, a generation ago, jumped twenty-four feet eleven and a half inches, and that stood as the world's record ever since, until Gourdin beat it by three and a half inches.

While he was jumping Gourdin's body was in the air one second. He took a running start of fifty yards. His body went rapidly through the air, almost twice as fast as a stone dropped from an upper story. That, as you know, would fall sixteen feet in the first second.

Twenty-five feet three inches is the world's record, so far as we know. Men in the past may have jumped farther. Probably they have, clearing streams to save their lives when hunted by wild beasts or wilder men. But you see here a picture of the greatest jump ever MEASURED.

You see, also, in the little picture the world's REAL jumping champion. Luckily for you this champion is not nearly as big as the picture makes him. If he were his bite would hurt you more than that of a bulldog; it might cut your jugular vein and cause death.

HERE'S A REAL CHAMPION

This small creature of terrific power, whose legs, compared with his body, are much smaller than those of a man, is the world's champion at high jumping and broad jumping. And, most remarkable, he takes no running start, his jumping is all done from a standstill.

Gourdin, the human champion, could jump only about four times his own length. If he could jump as well as the flea, in proportion to his size, he could jump 800 feet.

However, what man cannot do with his legs he CAN do with his BRAIN. His legs let him jump up in the air about as high as his head, and along the ground four times his length. His brain creates a flying machine with which he can go up in the air thirty thousand feet, and go through the air from ocean to ocean. That would surprise the flea, and make him say: "I give up."

The "Science of the Month," published in HEARST'S INTERNATIONAL MAGAZINE, edited by the learned Dr. Henry Smith Williams, M. D., LL. D., should be read by all young people, and especially by all old people that want to keep up with the progress of human thought.

When we live normally we shall all die of old age, passing gently and painlessly into the grave. Now only three in one thousand of us live to seventy, and not one in a thousand or ten thousand lives out what should be the full term of life.

Another champion with a horrid face of pain is CANCER, which in killing power stands ahead of consumption. In New York city the record stands for a week: Eighty-nine killed by cancer and sixty-seven by tuberculosis.

Cancer, constantly gaining in fearful destructiveness, is the champion among killing diseases. But old Worry Hurry is the super-champion, in the same week heart disease killed 387. And heart disease is another name of the American disease, Worry-Hurry.

We harness gravity; that is to say, we hitch and use up in our machinery the power created at Niagara. It is gravity, pull toward the centre of the earth, that makes the water fall downward. If it were possible to hold just above Niagara a solid body, bigger than this earth, the water of Niagara would rush upward to that bigger, solid body. The earth also would rush upward to obey the greater attractive power.

Harnessing gravity is old. Now men are trying to UNHARNESS gravity, and in Italy many interesting experiments have been made. We have long known that a shield of lead protects the body from X-rays. They will not go through the lead. An Italian scientist has proved that a thin sphere of lead surrounding a lead ball shuts out and diminishes the power of gravity. If we could conquer gravity travel would be simple nevertheless. You would go up in a balloon and wait for the earth to turn around to the city you wanted, then come down.

However, the atmosphere moves as rapidly as the earth's surface, 1,000 miles an hour, which would create an uncomfortably high wind if you stood still up there. And the earth in its journey around the sun goes many scores of thousands of miles per hour. To unharness gravity and cut loose from the earth might have serious results.

But the experiments are interesting and may prove of great practical importance.

If you could unharness gravity force in a thousand tons of lead a child could carry that load—which would reduce freight rates.

And remember that nothing that man CAN IMAGINE is impossible.

The above observations are based on a small part of one Science Department in HEARST'S INTERNATIONAL MAGAZINE, which is the best, because it is the most ably edited magazine published in this country.

French Chefs Lose Cunning

PARIS, Dec. 14.—Charges that French chefs are no longer creators, and that they only follow indifferently in the footsteps of their great predecessors, made by prominent Paris gourmets, have inspired the foundation for December of a "culinary salon," whereat prizes will be offered for new cooking conceptions.

"The war destroyed ambition in the kitchen," says Alexandre Duval, himself owner of a chain of restaurants and a Parisian dandy. "French chefs were drafted in the army and made black bread and fried monkey meat for the soldiers. When they came back their old art had forsaken them. They could no longer achieve the marvels of taste and kitchen architechture which made French cooking our supreme art before the war.

"Only a few good restaurants are left in Paris, and these are lost amid a horde of brilliant modern palaces, living on the reputation of former masters, to which foreigners ignorantly go, because they are social rendezvous.

"Where is the Brillat-Savarin of today?"

Brillat-Savarin was the world's most famous gourmet and the author of several books on the art of eating. He died in 1826. He is alleged once to have publicly rebuked Napoleon for drinking wine with a turtle consomme. Going to America in 1812, he wrote to a friend:

"Send me money to come home; my heart is breaking and my stomach dying."

DOPE EVIL SHOULD BE TAKEN UP BY ARMS CONFERENCE

By Annie Laurie

WASHINGTON, Dec. 14.—What's happened to the resolution introduced into Congress last week by Julius Kahn of California?

Where is it? Who's holding it up—and why?

It's a resolution asking the disarmament conference to take up in some way a discussion of the narcotic evil which is growing every day till it stretches around the world like some hideous and sinister web.

There's nothing strange or mysterious, or complicated, or hard to understand about that resolution.

It isn't even "diplomatic." It's just plain, honest, straight-forward, common sense United States talk, and it concerns something that is close to the very heart of every home in this country, whether those who are at the head of these homes quite realize the situation yet or not.

Why Not Discuss It?

What's the idea of holding off a plain, honest, open discussion of this almost incredible situation?

Why not discuss it—no?

We have never had such a chance before and we may never have such a chance again.

Most of the nations sitting in conference here are perfectly aware of the terrifying growth of the narcotic evil and there is hardly one of them that is not at this very moment making some sort of desperate effort to keep opium and its derivives and cocaine and its derivatives out of some one particular country.

Why whisper and hint about it any longer?

Mr. Kahn's resolution went to the Foreign Affairs Committee and it should be reported out of the committee for straightforward, fearless and honest discussion—not next week or next month, and not tomorrow—but now—today.

What is there before the Foreign Affairs Committee that is half so important as this business of the narcotic danger that is getting such a terrible hold upon us here in America and upon civilized and uncivilized human beings all over the world?

Mr. Kahn comes from the Pacific coast. He knows what the opium traffic means to California and to the sons and daughters of the California homes.

The members of Congress from New York know about it, too. Why shouldn't they, when high school boys are being arrested in New York city for peddling morphine in the schools?

The members of Congress from Chicago are not at all ignorant of the need of some drastic and practical action which will really do something real to stop the steady onrush of this tide of opium which is sweeping over us like some strange and deadly tidal wave.

Now, should the members of Congress from Illinois be either ignorant or indifferent when in the past few weeks thirty-five doctors and druggists have been arraigned in Chicago alone for selling morphine and cocaine and the even more deadly heroin to poor creatures who are drifting down and down the black river of misery because they can find someone who doesn't mind selling them death and despair at so much a grain—if there's money enough in it.

Why should the Congress of the United States hesitate to act upon a resolution which is intended to bring the truth to life and get some positive and practical accord between nations that will cut this hideous evil off at the very root once and for all.

We have asked very little of the conference, we Americans; can't we ask this much—just ask it anyhow, whether our request is granted or not—an open discussion of the narcotic evil and what to do about it—among the nations?

Manufactured Here

Much of the morphia that is smuggled into this country comes in first as crude opium, is manufactured into morphine and other deadly drugs right here in America, sold out of the country sed then smuggled back again to drug and dope and enslave our own people.

Why should we be afraid to ask even a hearing on this subject?

Who is there who would dare stand up and speak for the narcotic traffic? What would he say? What could he say?

Why shouldn't the nations of the world get together in an agreement on this vital subject? What could be the possible objection for asking such a thing?

Where is that resolution introduced into Congress by Julius Kahn of California the other day?

Mr. Porter of Pennsylvania, you are chairman of the Foreign Affairs Committee. When are we going to hear from your committee on the Kahn resolution?

Lollypop Instead of Spanking

CHICAGO, Dec. 14.—Instead of giving him a "warming" when he insists upon going swimming against your wishes, give your son a lollypop or something else to delight him. That is the true course to obedience and will make a better boy of your son in the long run.

So advises Mrs. Marietta Johnson, a mother, who has been speaking on children at Chicago. Mrs. Johnson declares that she practices what she preaches and that the results of her experiments have proven the truth of her contentions.

"If your child cries because he cannot go swimming and thinks it is you who won't let him go, the only way to reassure him is to give him something that will delight him," declared Mrs. Johnson in lecturing on the subect of "Obedience."

"We should not scold him. We punish him for suffering. When we suffer because we cannot have things we expect our friends to sympathize with us.

"If you want a little anarchist in your home, just keep on making him conform, doings whether he will or not. That is the trouble in Russia. Anarchy is the child of repression.

"Obedience is quite another thing. It is the child's will acting in harmony with the adult's.

"Some day the school system will take into consideration that no two children are alike. As it is, one child will go to school with his pockets full of tops bored to death with arithmetic and spelling. Another is so interested he improves and is petted."
